WEATHER
Cloudy and cool with occasional rain today. Thursday, cloudy, snow flurries and colder.

DREW PEARSON
These are dull days at the White House with few prominent visitors. Political and social activities of the outgoing Johnson Administration are grinding to a halt.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER
Cloudy and cool with occasional rain today, changing to snow tonight and turning colder. High in the middle 50s, low tonight in the middle 30s. Probability of precipitation 80 per cent today, close to 100 per cent tonight. Winds easterly, 15-25 miles per hour. Thursday, cloudy, snow flurries and colder. Tuesday's weather; high 60, low 43, no precipitation, river level 2.3 feet and falling.

Pool level 1301.19 feet (desired summer pool level 1328 feet; maximum level 1365 feet). Upstream water 54 degrees, downstream water 51 degrees. Warren Gauge 2.35 feet and falling.

WARREN COUNTY

Incumbent Republican Senator Richard C. Frame takes an early lead in each of the 25th Senatorial District's five counties Tuesday and according to incomplete, unofficial returns defeated his Democratic rival, Robert N. Kunselman, by an almost two to one margin.

William W. "Bill" Allen of Tidoute is assured of representing Warren and Forest counties from the 65th Assembly District. Voters in both counties gave the incumbent candidate a wide margin of victory.

A 16-year-old Corry youth is killed in a one-car accident on Route 77 in Spring Creek Township.

Residents of Elk, Farmington and Pine Grove Townships are urged to attend a meeting of the Russell Community Action Group tonight to discuss a low-rent housing complex for senior citizens.

PENNSYLVANIA

Hubert H. Humphrey on the strength of a smashing majority in Philadelphia, wins Pennsylvania's crucial 29 presidential electoral votes.

A plan to give Pennsylvania's Vietnam war veterans bonuses up to $750 each is overwhelmingly approved.

A Mennonite family of four, which doesn't believe in violence, overpower two prison escapees who forced their way into their rural home and thanks "a higher power" for helping them.

THE NATION

The South Vietnamese government first agreed to participate in Paris peace talks, then withdrew its commitment, but President Johnson went ahead with the bombing halt anyway, informants say.

The presidential race appears headed for a photo finish as Vice President moves ahead in the popular vote but lags in the electoral count with Wallace complicating the picture.

The Democrats withstand heavy challenges from Republicans in Senate and House races and appear headed for continued control in the 91st Congress.

THE WORLD

The U.S. is forced to put off the opening session of enlarged Vietnam peace talks because of South Vietnam's refusal to attend and lack of agreement on procedures.

A captured enemy document contains orders from Hanoi to step up fighting despite U.S. halt of all attacks on North Vietnam.

The government lifts a curfew over Amman amid indications that King Hussein has reached an agreement with rebellious Palestinian commandos.

SPORTS

The University of Southern California still perches atop AP's Major College football poll, but Ohio State, Kansas and Penn State are creeping up on the Trojans.

The American League's Most Valuable Player plays the organ, won 31 games, and pitches for the Detroit Tigers. Name -- one Denny McLain.

Viet Bonus Overwhelmingly Approved

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A plan to give Pennsylvania's Vietnam war veterans bonuses up to $750 each was overwhelmingly approved Tuesday night. Only the final margin of victory was in doubt.

With 6,722 of 9,492 precincts reporting, the vote was 1,050,236 for the bonus, 333,574 against.

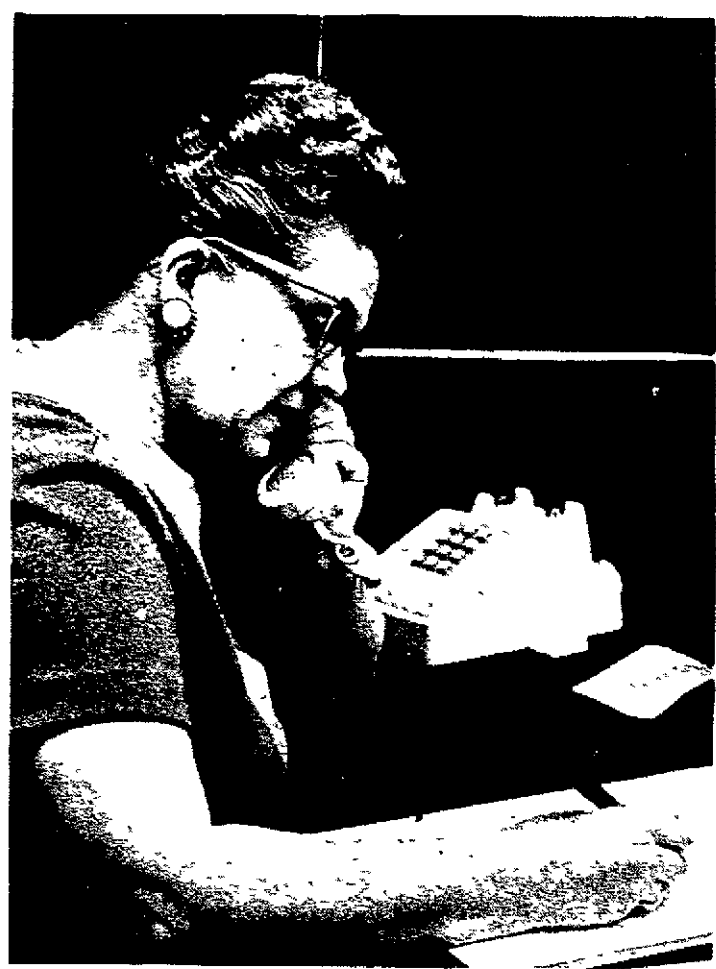

The referendum allows for the floating of a $28 million bond issue to finance the payments, which would be computed on basis of $25 for each month of service in the war zone.

Kin of servicemen who were killed in the war or dead of disease or injury suffered in Vietnam would receive $1,000.

The referendum marked the first time in history the state's citizens voted on a servicemen's bonus while a war was still in progress.

The voters approved a $150 million bonus bill for Korean conflict veterans, a $500 million bonus for World War II GIs and another for World War I veterans.

The primary difference between the Korean and World War II bonuses and the Vietnam bill is the two earlier bonuses also went to veterans of stateside duty.

Humphrey Wins State's 29 Crucial Electoral Votes

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey, on the strength of smashing 270,000-vote majority in Philadelphia, won Pennsylvania's crucial 29 presidential electoral votes Tuesday night—exactly the way John F. Kennedy defeated Richard M. Nixon in this key state eight years ago.

George C. Wallace, the third party nominee who was expected to be the Democratic spoiler, trailed far behind — and never approached the strength his own supporters had predicted and which Democrats and Republicans had feared.

With 7,074 of the 9,492 precincts reported, or 75 per cent, Humphrey had 1,541,810, Nixon 1,351,904, Wallace 493,400.

But, while Humphrey shocked Nixon, Republicans and dissident Democrats appeared to be shocking U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, the Democratic incumbent seeking a third six-year term.

The 67-year-old Clark, victim of severe ticket splitting, especially in the Democratic city strongholds, was trailing in the political fight of his life with Republican challenger Richard S. Schweiker. He appeared to be in serious trouble.

With 6,292 precincts reported, Clark, long an opponent of the Vietnam war, had 1,425,855 against 1,540,431 for Schweiker, a 42-year-old, four-term congressman who had a more hawkish viewpoint and campaigned for youth and change.

Humphrey's sensation win, except for possibly Clark, appeared to be carrying the three other statewide candidates to victory — for state treasurer, auditor general and Superior Court judge.

The vice president carved out his win in the big cities and industrial regions, where Democrats held registration leads.

Besides Philadelphia, he piled up votes in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Pittsburgh, Erie and Reading.

In 1960, Kennedy won Pennsylvania from Nixon by 110,000 on the strength of a 331,000 majority in Philadelphia. President Johnson won by a 1.5 million landslide four years ago, rolling up a record 424,000 edge in the state's biggest city.

Republicans had hoped to keep Humphrey's Philadelphia margin below 150,000 — and based their hopes for Nixon win on that premise, plus an outpouring of Wallace sentiment that never really materialized.

The Humphrey win didn't appear to be working any change in Pennsylvania's Congressional delegation—now 13-13 with one Democratic vacancy due to the summer death of Rep. Elmer J. Holland of Allegheny County.

The voter turnout was exceptionally heavy all across the state, wiping out pre-election forecasts of apathy.

Both major parties expended maximum efforts in the Keystone state trying to win. Both Humphrey and Nixon, and their running mates, Sen. Edmund Muskie and Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew, made frequent forays into Pennsylvania.

No GOP candidate for president has ever won the White House without capturing Pennsylvania's 29 electoral votes, third largest bloc in the nation.

Government Lifts Curfew Over Amman at Midnight

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The government lifted a curfew over Amman at midnight Tuesday amid indications that King Hussein had reached an agreement with rebellious Palestinian commandos.

Palestinian guerrilla sources in Damascus, Syria, reported an agreement had been reached during a meeting between Hussein and leaders of four commando groups in Jordan. They said the commando leaders telephoned the news from the royal palace in Amman, but there was no official Jordanian confirmation.

Machine-gun bursts sounded in scattered sections of this capital city Tuesday night, but they were believed to be warning shots for curfew violators.

The government had lifted the curfew earlier in the day, then reimposed it and later called it off again.

Outside Amman, a fire broke out near a camp housing Palestinian refugees. It was believed to have been connected with the two-day confrontation between Hussein and the dissident guerrillas.

Humphrey Ahead in Popular Vote But Trails in Electoral Count

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey inched ahead of Richard M. Nixon Tuesday in popular votes but trailed in the crucial electoral count in the race for the presidency.

Although Republican Nixon clung to a lead in electoral votes in states already won, Humphrey showed a lead in states still to be decided.

Meanwhile Democrats, despite tough Republican challenges, appeared assured of continued control in the 91st Congress—but with narrowed margins.

In the Humphrey-Nixon showdown, the percentage showed the vice president inching ahead of his GOP rival in the popular count by one percentage point — 42 to 41.

Nixon captured the electoral votes in Kentucky, Vermont, Indiana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Maryland, Florida, Colorado, Kansas, Idaho, Tennessee, Wyoming, Virginia, Delaware, New Hampshire and South Carolina. This gave Nixon 120.

Humphrey won the electoral votes of the district of Columbia, Connecticut, Minnesota, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Maine and Massachusetts—a total of 50.

Wallace won in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana for a total of 39.

It will take a 270-vote majority of the electoral college to select the winner.

BULLETIN!

NEW YORK — Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey were locked early today in the exceptional close battle for the presidency of the United States, with Nixon within reach of a narrow Electoral College majority.

It remained possible, for Humphrey to score an upset, and there was also a strong possibility that neither man would win the 270 electoral votes required for election.

In the latter event, the election would have to be decided by the House of Representatives. The Democrats appeared to be retaining control of that body, and appeared likely to command enough state delegations to elect Humphrey.

Reported vote at 3:15 a.m.: Nixon—22,012,235 (42 per cent); Humphrey—22,043,622 (42 per cent); Wallace—7,737,642 (15 per cent).

Early returns indicated no major shift in the makeup of the House of Representatives, which will elect the president in the event of an Electoral College deadlock. Democratic candidates in the East were ahead in most marginal congressional districts.

The national picture: Popular vote, 21 per cent of voting units: Humphrey 7,002,713, or 41 per cent; Nixon 7,049,814, or 41 per cent; Wallace 3,096,779, or 18 per cent.

Electoral vote: Humphrey carried four states and the District of Columbia with 36 electoral votes and led in 12 states with 187 electoral votes; Nixon carried seven states with 63

Republicans Record Clean Sweep in County

Republicans who enjoy a two to one registration edge in Warren County recorded a predictable clean sweep of the ballot Tuesday.

The greatest surprise was the record time in which the 43 precincts reported their tallies. The figures from Deerfield twp., the last polling place to report, were phoned in at 10:45 p.m., just two hours and 45 minutes after the polls closed.

After a singular cross over to the Democratic side of the presidential ballot in 1964 when Lyndon Johnson polled 63.5 per cent of the votes cast, the county electorate returned to the GOP fold giving 8,504 votes to Richard M. Nixon and 6,016 to his Democratic opponent Hubert H. Humphrey.

George Wallace, who was receiving about 18 per cent of the vote nationally, garnered only 760 votes or less than five per cent of the votes cast in the county.

Voter turnout was the lowest of the decade with good weather apparently not enough of a stimulus to overcome the degree of apathy toward the candidates this year. About 15,300 or 77.4 per cent of the county's 19,767 voters went to the polls. In 1964 the turnout was 16,164 and in 1960 17,701, when Nixon received 11,300 votes.

In the race for the U.S. Senate seat Republican Richard Schweiker outpolled Democrat incumbent Joseph Clark 8,930 to 5,956.

John B. Hannum, GOP candidate for judge of the Superior Court, received 8,892. His opponent, William F. Cercone had a vote tally of 5,643.

In the auditor general race voters gave 8,541 votes to Republican Warner Dupuy and 6,083 to Democrat Robert Casey.

The Republican state treasurer candidate Frank J. Pasquerella had a countywide vote total of 8,493 while Democrat Grace Sloan led her party on the ballot here with 6,243.

The question on the ballot by which the voters were to decide whether the commonwealth is to go $28-million into debt to compensate Vietnam veterans passed in the county by a 5,536 to 1,828 margin.

U.S. Forced to Postpone Opening of Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The United States was forced Tuesday to put off the opening session of enlarged Vietnam peace talks because of South Vietnam's refusal to attend and a lack of agreement on procedures.

The rebel Viet Cong challenged the Americans to proceed without the South Vietnamese representatives, but U.S. delegation sources made it clear Washington would not agree.

"The U.S. delegation can represent both the U.S. government and the Saigon administration," the National Liberation front negotiator, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, told a news conference.

"Therefore," she added, "we are ready to meet with only three delegations present"—the United States, North Vietnam and the NLF.

The first enlarged four-sided meeting was to have been held Wednesday, a date advanced by President Johnson when he called a bomb halt last Thursday.

The refusal of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to delegate an envoy to the conference prompted the U.S. delegation to announce the postponement.

"We continue to consult with the Republic of (South) Vietnam on this matter, and are hopeful that its delegation to these forthcoming talks will arrive in the near future," U.S. spokesman William J. Jordan said.

"As soon as a date for the first meeting is decided, it will be announced promptly."

U.S. sources said the meeting was called off on American initiative. They said the North Vietnamese had shown no interest in holding a two-party session. The Americans said they had no intention of attending three-cornered talks with Hanoi and the NLF.

The enlargement of the talks to include the four main fighting parties in Vietnam was part of the American peace package that included the halt of U.S. attacks on North Vietnam and Hanoi's tacit acceptance of mutual de-escalation.

Both the Viet Cong and North Vietnam have sworn to continue the fighting while enlarged peace talks go on in Paris.

The document was seized a few days ago and disclosed that Hanoi had decided to hew to its course of violence even before the U.S. halt was announced, the South Vietnamese political warfare department reported.

Regional and provincial political commissars were told to increase the guerrilla movement and "military, political and enemy troop action activities throughout the territory of South Vietnam after the United States stops the bombing of North Vietnam," the government quoted the document as saying.

"In the political field," the document continued, "the provincial commissars have to push into action several armed propaganda teams into the towns and cities in order to carry out on a large scale their program of terrorism, assassination and sabotage."

Document Shows Hanoi Plans Increased Fighting

SAIGON (AP) — A captured enemy document contained orders from Hanoi to step up the fighting, terrorism and sabotage in South Vietnam despite the U.S. halt of all attacks on North Vietnam, the government reported Tuesday.

A U.S. military spokesman said American intelligence still had the document under study to determine its meaning, origin and authenticity.

The daily communique from U.S. Command headquarters reported 80 "scattered small unit contacts with light casualties" throughout South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported that preliminary figures indicated American combat casualties since last Friday, when President Johnson ordered a halt to all attacks on North Vietnam, had continued at about the same level of the past two weeks.

In the week ending Oct. 28, the command said, 109 Americans died in battle, compared to 100 the week before that. The deaths are the lowest in 14 months.

Saigon was quiet after two small demonstrations Tuesday supporting President Nguyen Van Thieu's decision to boycott enlarged peace talks in Paris.

Thieu has said his government will never agree to sit with representatives of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front enjoying equal status at the peace table.

Scientific Sun-Watchers Make Flight to Moon Safe

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Scientific sun-watchers are making it safer to fly to the moon, while making it easier to keep the lights burning at home.

If there were no warnings, storms on the sun could spew radiation on unprotected astronauts exploring the moon and could cause massive power failures on earth, explained Robert B. Decker, chief of forecast services at the Space Disturbance Forecast Center here.

Using satellites and sophisticated optical and radio equipment, the center, operated by the Environmental Science Services Administration, studies and forecasts "solar weather" much as the Weather Bureau does its job on earth.

Decker said it is possible these forecasts, using information from Pioneer satellites keeping tabs on even the away-from-earth side of the sun, might warn lunar astronauts of dangerous radiation headed their way, even before sensors on their mother spacecraft detect it. The additional safety margin could be vital.

This ability to detect buildups of activity on the far side of the sun, perhaps 10 days before they would be sighted from earth, is the most important contribution to flare forecasting made by the Pioneer series, Decker said. Pioneer 9 is to be launched Friday.

Forecasting will not play a critical part in next month's planned Apollo lunar orbiting mission, he said, because the astronauts will not leave their protective spaceships.

But later, he said, when they walk about on the moon "relatively unprotected" from radiation, flare forecasting will play an important part in command decisions.

The earth is shielded from solar radiation by its own atmosphere.

The threat to electrical power systems is posed by magnetic storms generated by the flares. These storms, which also can knock out short-wave radio communications, sometimes cause changes in voltage on long-distance transmission lines.

Youngstown Turns Down School Levy

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Youngstown voters turned down a 12-mill school operating levy Tuesday despite warnings by the school board that all city schools would close from Nov. 27 until Jan. 3 if the levy was defeated.

The complete unofficial tally was 25,843 against and 24,372 for the levy.

School board members voted Oct. 22 to close the schools unless the levy was approved.

The shutdown would affect some 28,000 pupils in Youngstown, where five other operating levies had been defeated in the last two years. A 12-mill levy was defeated in the May primary this year.

School officials said without the levy there would not be enough money left to continue classes. They said that in event of a shutdown, classes would continue until June 30 next year to meet state qualifications for financial aid.

But they warned that additional classes next June might cause another financial shortage that could prevent schools from opening on schedule next September.

Veterans Day Dinner Sunday

Marshall Larsen Post 314, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Clarendon, will hold its annual Veterans Day dinner in the post home at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. John Carter, pastor of St. Clara's Roman Catholic Church, will be guest speaker. The 19th District Commander, Merle Bostaph, and Mrs. Bostaph, will attend the dinner.

Post officials said all post members and guests and all auxiliary members and guests were urged to attend.

LBJ Votes For Another President

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson voted for another president Tuesday at an electric co-op he helped establish, a block down the street from the white frame house where he spent much of his boyhood.

Johnson has been touting his vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, as a man who deserves the faith and support of the American people, and as the one man best qualified to take over the White House next January.

He wasn't answering any questions Tuesday about how he marked his ballot—or about anything else.

Even though he was ignoring questions, he was amiable, relaxed and chatty.

Election box No. 4 at Johnson City was open for ballot business at 7 a.m. Two hours later the President and Mrs. Johnson arrived from the LBJ ranch 15 miles to the west, with Johnson at the wheel and his pet pup, Yuki, in the back seat of a white Continental.

They passed a marble plaque on the low, L-shaped building of native limestone proclaiming that the Pedernales Electric Cooperative Inc. is "a product of the faith, ability and foresight of Lyndon Baines Johnson, President of the United States of America, while congressman, Tenth District."

The President and First Lady motored back to the ranch, where aides said it looked like a quiet day—a good bit of it to be spent in front of a television set checking the returns.

KIWANIANS SERVE 1,350 SPAGHETTI DINNERS

Nixon Awaits Verdict In His Adopted State

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon returned to his adopted New York from his native California Tuesday to await the nation's verdict on his second attempt in eight years to become president of the United States.

Nixon and his family landed at Newark Airport in New Jersey, then motored to New York City, where the Republican candidate will watch the returns.

Nixon arranged to receive the voting returns in a suite in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Towers.

In the ballroom below, workmen put the finishing touches on decorations for what Nixon's aides were calling "the victory celebration tonight." Thousands of colored balloons clustered under the ceiling above colored photographs of Nixon and his running mate, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland. A large motion picture screen was set up in one corner of the ballroom.

Wallace Casts Vote To Music and Cheers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace, his spirits responding to the cheers of well-wishers and the music of a high school band, cast his vote in the presidential election Tuesday.

Wallace drove the 86 miles from Montgomery to his hometown of Clayton, Ala., to vote, chat and shake hands with close friends and neighbors, eat lunch with his grandmother, and then return to Montgomery to await election results with his running mate, Gen. Curtis LeMay who flew in from California.

The third-party candidate voted at the Barbour County Courthouse where, long before he became a national figure, he presided as judge of Alabama's 3rd Judicial Circuit.

His brother, Jack, is the judge now. He stood alongside the presidential candidate just before Wallace went into the voting booth. With them were their mother, Mrs. Mozelle Wallace of Montgomery, an employee of

Proud Neighbors Watch As Humphrey Votes

WAVERLY, Minn. (AP) — A handful of proud neighbors watched Hubert H. Humphrey vote in a tiny, remote township hall Tuesday. The vice president and Democratic candidate for president then retired to the quiet of his nearby lakeshore home to rest.

The vote that the vice president laughingly told reporters "was a secret," was cast in Marysville township hall, an old wooden building.

Humphrey calls the tiny community of Waverly, 40 miles west of Minneapolis, his home town, but he is a voting resident of the township which, like Waverly, is near his rambling lake retreat called the Triple HHH ranch.

The vice president's right hand wore bandages from bruises received shaking hands in the tumultuous Los Angeles campaign's homestretch.

Humphrey was in such good spirits after the Los Angeles welcome and the marathon telecast from that city which wound up his campaign that he strode up and down the plane returning him home early this morning, talking and chatting as some members of his staff slept.

Of 450 registered voters in Marysville township, the vice president and Mrs. Humphrey were the 41st and 42nd to vote Tuesday.

After a private dinner at his lake home, Humphrey was to go to the Leamington hotel in downtown Minneapolis and retire to a 14th floor suite to await the nation's verdict.

An aide said Humphrey will make a statement Tuesday night, in a first-floor ballroom of the hotel, at such time that seems appropriate.

Election Day Demonstrators March in Number of Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Antiwar pickets and Election Day demonstrators marched in a number of American cities Tuesday, and Sen. Edmund Muskie went to the polls in Maine to the protest chant of "free elections now."

There was a brief battle in Newark, N.J., between demonstrators and counterprotesters. Across from the White House in Washington, police arrested about 100 paraders. In New York, after a Union Square rally, groups invaded midtown, including Rockefeller Center, and there were more than 70 arrests.

While there were scattered incidents elsewhere in the country, at nightfall they had fallen far short of the large-scale, massive protests mapped in advance of the election.

At Ohio State University in Columbus, student extremists paraded with an empty plywood coffin, which they said symbolized the death of American politics in Tuesday's election. They later burned campaign posters and nominated a black and white spotted pig as their choice for president.

The incidents were intended to emphasize the protesters' claim that the choice among presidential candidates made the 1968 election "a fraud."

Militant antiwar groups and student radicals, in advance of election day, had called for demonstrations "in city streets all over the country." However, their leaders had said they did not intend to disrupt the voting.

In Waterville, Maine, Muskie and his wife, Jane, voted the straight Democratic ticket, on which he is the vice-presidential candidate.

Women Marines Featured in Film

A film show and slide program illustrating life as a woman Marine Corps officer will highlight a seminar Wednesday for any interested young women between the ages of 18 and 28. The program will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA activities building, Second St., Carolyn Schaeffer, former youth director at the "Y," will conduct the program, followed by an informal discussion period. Parents are invited to attend.

About 175 college students from the area shouted and waved signs reading "Choice???" Muskie said the demonstration did not disturb him.

About 250 to 350 youths in Chicago, protesting what leaders called "the hoax of the election," marched in orderly fashion through the Loop, then disbanded after a brief rally at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, the scene of violent confrontations between police and demonstrators during the Democratic National Convention in August.

More than 1,000 demonstrators burned a U.S. flag in San Francisco's Civic Center plaza and cheered a black and white pig they called their presidential candidate.

In downtown Los Angeles, about 500 students, mostly from City College, marched from City Hall to Pershing Square, where speakers denounced the Vietnam war and the elections.

Conservation Education

When Governor Raymond P. Shafer proclaimed a Conservation Education Week in Pennsylvania recently he directed attention to a subject that has for far too long been neglected in our schools and colleges. A subject that up until the mid 20th century was considered by most as irrelevant to our ever-advancing technological age.

But now, with leading scientists proclaiming that the present rate of land, water and air pollution is such that the earth could be rendered uninhabitable in as little as 50 years, and no more than 100 years, the conservation of our resources has suddenly become all-important. We are finally realizing that conservation education is truly an important subject and should be taught at all levels of the educational system.

Reluctantly our schools and colleges are moving in this direction. But by far the greatest efforts are being made by government agencies, private organizations, and dedicated individuals.

A great stride forward in the field has been announced by Western Pennsylvania Conservancy. Through the generosity of the Edgar J. Kaufmann Foundation they have acquired a suitable building to house a lecture hall, reception room, exhibit room, office, and modern rest rooms; as well as 1,500 acres of land suitable for the study of conservation measures.

The area will be known as the Bear Run Center and will be under the direction of Dr. John W. Hug, a specialist in conservation and outdoor recreation. Located near Mill Run in Fayette County, the installation has been heralded by Dr. Charles F. Lewis, president of the Conservancy, as a major educational facility. He has said, "it is our hope that we can demonstrate in pilot programs the procedure by which an appreciation for our natural resources can be instilled in the children of our region so that they may better care for the rich natural heritage they inherit."

It may be a long time before Warren County will have a facility as complete as the Bear Run project. But we are abundantly endowed with the requirements for an outstanding conservation education program—suitable natural areas and dedicated individuals with both the academic and practical backgrounds to make their instructions valuable. Doesn't the possibility exist that through a voluntary cooperative program some start could be made toward a broad-based conservation education course for our county students at this time?

Surely such a possibility does exist—what is needed is some imaginative direction.

Jackie's Big Mistake

WASHINGTON — Of all the events of 1968, none has had more of an effect on the American people than the marriage of Jackie Kennedy to Greek zillionaire Aristotle Onassis. People who had no opinion on the Vietnam war, the crisis of the cities or the youth revolution all had something to say about Mrs. Kennedy's nuptials.

It seems to me that what Jackie Kennedy didn't realize was that she was the property of the American people and, therefore, that she had no right to choose a husband on her own. If Mrs. Kennedy wanted to get married again, she should have informed the American public of this, either on the Johnny Carson show or the Bell Telephone Hour, and let the American people choose a husband for her.

Once she made her intentions known, a special Republican and Democratic convention would have been called and candidates would have been nominated for her to marry.

After the nominations, each candidate would have campaigned for Jackie's hand. They would have explained what they would do for Jackie as a husband, where they would live and how they would raise Jackie's children.

The candidates would have bought television time to let the public know where they stood, not only on the marriage, but also on the public issues of the day.

They also would have traveled across the nation so that Americans could see them in the flesh and decide for themselves which candidate would be the best mate for the former First Lady.

Not only would the public have listened to the platform of the men it thought were suitable for Jackie's hand, but people would also have decided the complicated questions of religion, age and nationality of the husband-to-be.

Since they had so much at stake, the public would have taken far more interest in this campaign than they have in the presidential election.

The climax of the race for Jackie's husband would have been a nationally televised debate between the candidates, so the electorate could see for itself how each man would behave under pressure.

Finally, on Election Day, Americans from all walks of life would have gone to the

JIM BISHOP Special Private Treatment

It had to be daylight. He knew it by the hurt in his eyes. The young dark curly head was cupped in the pillow. The face was flushed, the long lashes curving free of the lids, the innocent mouth full and relaxed. The only sign that he was awake was in the movement of the twined fingers on the bedspread.

To know — to know that one knows — is consciousness. This is what he had and it was what he feared. The young man could feel his heart, which was also awake now and afraid, throbbing in his temples and pulsing in the tight embrace of the fingers. Carefully, he partly opened one eye. It was as he had dreaded. He was not home.

The opened eye, aching backward into a cone in the middle of his mind, had seen a cheap crystal chandelier. It looked like a small artificial Christmas tree hanging upside down. He closed the eye and took a long breath. Somewhere in space, he was in another sanitarium or hospital, and he knew not the day or the hour, or where all the others had fled.

There would be a scene, of course. His anguished mother and father would travel to whatever state this was, and would plead with "Dear, dear Reggie" to stop drinking. He would be too sick to debate life or death in a bottle, and he would murmur: "I've learned my lesson. This is the last time."

Reggie was 26, looked 18, was married to a drudge who seldom complained, and was what the local paper called the "scion" of its first family. He had been intoxicated for six years and, off and on, had been a patient at a variety of sanitariums and hospitals. In sum, a bum.

He opened the eye wider and permitted the other one to join it. He could hear the critical hissing of a radiator. The room was large and square. His memory told him that most of them were squarish and old-fashioned. It was as though groups of doctors bought old mansions, and put bars on the windows and high fences around the lawns. To balance this, the caretakers always responded sweetly, no matter how crude and abusive the language of the patient. Reggie had been yessed to death by specialists.

Sometimes they strapped him down and crossed his arms and he alternately screamed and slept for days. In others, they had syringes which kept him placid and comatose. A few tried psychiatric treatment, but Reggie was suspicious and hostile. He was sure that he had tried all the known "cures." This one was different.

The roaming eyes in the motionless head caught the bottom of the curtains lifting from an open window. He saw a table and a chair, an oxygen tank against a wall, a door locked, probably a fireplace, and over it, a fake marble mantel. The fearful eyes swept the mantel and returned quickly.

There was something on the mantel. One, two, three glasses. Shot glasses. The head began to come slowly off the pillow. They were filled with something brownish. It was an illusion. It had to be. A trick of a monumental hangerover. Without looking, he reached for a cord and a buzzer. It was there, pinned to the sheet under the pillow. He pressed, and waited.

The door opened. It had been unlocked. An orderly came in. He was smiling. He was fat and walked like a duck. "I knew you'd be awake soon," he said. "The day is Monday, the time is 2 p.m., and you're in a rest home in Pennsylvania. You have been missing from home for three weeks and you are in no trouble with the police. Your parents will be here in an hour. Anything I can do for you, sir?" Reggie hurt all over. He almost worked up a smile. "You know all the answers before I ask the questions," he whispered. "Are those drinks whiskey?" He pointed. The orderly nodded. "They are indeed, sir. We have a special private treatment here — very private. You get one drink every hour on the hour." He looked at the mantel. "You are three behind."

"Is it medicated?" Reggie said. The orderly grinned. "It's real enough. Eighty-five proof, sir. The management feels that no one can fight a real drinker. Therefore, we join 'em. Provided, that is, that the patient doesn't tell his family the kind of treatment he's getting."

Reggie put himself up on one elbow. "Bring them over," he croaked. "And hold them to my mouth one by one. How much will it cost my people to keep me here?" The orderly fetched the shot glasses. "Three hundred a week, I believe."

"Fine," Reggie said. "That's dandy. Now give me those drinks and my watch. I may want to spend the winter here." ...

WASHINGTON — Outwardly these are dull days at the White House. Limousines no longer line up inside the South Gate waiting for heads of state or diplomatic missions. No longer do Congressmen stream down Pennsylvania avenue to watch bill-signing ceremonies or be briefed on the war in Vietnam or the urgency of passing certain legislation.

No longer does the President stand in the East Room between the portraits of Martha and George Washington to swear in new members of his administration.

Even the photographers waiting in the executive office lobby to "shoot" distinguished visitors are listless. There aren't as many visitors any more.

In the rest of the nation, a bitter debate has been swirling as to who shall be the next President of the United States. The incumbent President has sat, most of the time, aloof. He loves politics; no President since Franklin Roosevelt has been such an adroit politician with Congress. But he has been concentrating on the war in Vietnam, a war which has clouded and obscured the great domestic achievements of his administration and which he has been trying desperately to end.

Aside from these surface aspects, however, things have not changed around the White House. There is just as much internal activity as during the climax of the Great Society. The staff never leaves until 8:30 or 9 p.m., sometimes later. Nor does the President. Seldom does he get back to the residence for supper much before ten.

He no longer wakes up at 3 a.m. to call the communications center for reports on the last bombing mission — how many planes lost? Instead his time has been absorbed with diplomatic cables, between Saigon and Washington, Washington and Paris, Hanoi and Moscow, intercepts between Hanoi and China, helpful messages from New Delhi, Bucharest, Warsaw, London and Bonn. Desperately and for weeks he has been trying to get a truce.

Concentration on these problems has not interfered with the President's sense of humor or his interest in his grandchildren.

"The truce talks are like a baby's fever," the President told members of his staff. "It goes up to 106 and then down to 98."

"Everything was all tension around here the day before Lynda's baby was born. Lady Bird was supposed to go down to Austin to make a speech for Hubert, yet she wanted to be here. And Luci was supposed to be at the Democratic Women's Club to raise money for Hubert with little Lyn as the star performer. At the same time, Luci wanted to be around with her sister because she had already had a baby and she wanted to tell Lynda how to have one."

"That morning Lyn woke up with a fever," the President told his staff. "It was up to 102. Everybody said that Luci ought not to take

Aside from these surface aspects, however, things have not changed around the White House. There is just as much internal activity as during the climax of the Great Society. The staff never leaves until 8:30 or 9 p.m., sometimes later. Nor does the President. Seldom does he get back to the residence for supper much before ten.

He no longer wakes up at 3 a.m. to call the communications center for reports on the last bombing mission — how many planes lost? Instead his time has been absorbed with diplomatic cables, between Saigon and Washington, Washington and Paris, Hanoi and Moscow, intercepts between Hanoi and China, helpful messages from New Delhi, Bucharest, Warsaw, London and Bonn. Desperately and for weeks he has been trying to get a truce.

Concentration on these problems has not interfered with the President's sense of humor or his interest in his grandchildren.

"The truce talks are like a baby's fever," the President told members of his staff. "It goes up to 106 and then down to 98."

"Everything was all tension around here the day before Lynda's baby was born. Lady Bird was supposed to go down to Austin to make a speech for Hubert, yet she wanted to be here. And Luci was supposed to be at the Democratic Women's Club to raise money for Hubert with little Lyn as the star performer. At the same time, Luci wanted to be around with her sister because she had already had a baby and she wanted to tell Lynda how to have one."

"That morning Lyn woke up with a fever," the President told his staff. "It was up to 102. Everybody said that Luci ought not to take

Lyn to the Democratic reception. But she said, 'He's one of the performers and can't back down on his act.' So she let him walk across the stage waving his little flag. He waved it when they told him to, and then he waved goodbye and finally, when the band struck up a tune, he did a little Humphrey dance.

"Then when they got Lyn back home, they found that his fever had gone down to 98.5. There was nothing wrong with him at all."

"Well, that's just like the war. These peace overtures blow hot and they blow cold. You can never tell where they are."

The President has substituted workouts with little Lyn for his former walks around the south grounds of the White House with his beagles. Lyn could tire out an Olympic athlete. "I don't know what's in his head," observes his grandfather, "but I know what's in his legs."

By this time the President has become fairly dexterous in balancing babies. There was a time when he didn't quite know how to get the palm of his hand under both his grandson's back and head at the same time. But having practiced on his grandson, he is now quite an expert with his granddaughter.

His daughters usually show him the letters they receive regularly from their husbands in South Vietnam. They are wholesome letters written by busy men. Capt. Chuck Robb has been under fire most of the time, but he minimizes it in his letters to Lynda Bird. She can read between the lines, however, and worries a lot. She was about the happiest woman in Washington when her father made his historic bombing pause announcement.

Pat Nugent, in the Air Force to the south, writes to Luci that he has been hoping to go north and see his Marine Corps brother-in-law. But travel has been difficult.

The President is looking ahead to the day when he will be in Texas, busy with the Lyndon B. Johnson Library and the school to train Congressmen and city officials that he is establishing at the University of Texas.

"They've got a school to train diplomats at Princeton," he told the Vice President the other day. "Why shouldn't we have a school to train city and county officials and Congressmen? I'm going to get you down there to speak, Hubert," he said. "And I'm not going to pay you anything either. I'm going to get Wayne Morse and some of these other great orators to come down. They charge too much and I'm not going to pay them anything but their expenses. I want 'em to spend some time with the kids on the campus. I'm going to invite Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown and we're going to have free-for-all debates. I'm going to show 'em what free speech really is."

Thus does the President approach his last days and months in the White House. They are days of winding up an era. And the end of an era is never happy, especially when it has been one of the most energetic and most productive and most criticized in history.

MASON DENISON Worthy Campaign Sidelights

HARRISBURG — With the presidential campaign of 1968 now locked in the record books — at least insofar as the campaign itself is concerned — a few interesting and perhaps significant sidelights are worth noting.

For example, there is the case of Pennsylvania's "second" or junior U.S. Senator, Virginia-born Scott, who wasn't even running for office this year (his term doesn't expire until 1970) but you might think so on the basis of his activity during the past campaign.

This "activity record" of the 68-year-old Philadelphia barrister in behalf of the Nixon presidential spurt is intriguing from several standpoints, but perhaps most significantly from that of having been the standard-bearer and exhorter-par-excellence in behalf of Mr. Nixon's stoutest pre-nominating convention opponent, New York State Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

There were those who assumed after the Rockefeller fade-out that pipe-puffing Hugh Scott would merely amble along the sidelines of the Nixon entourage, providing lip service here and there, and in general simply not bothering too much with the Nixon effort — for after all, he was not the candidate Mr. Scott had backed initially.

That isn't quite the way the former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and onetime national chairman of the Republican Party works. He's good for a scrap over either a candidate or a principle he believes in but once the powder horns have been tumbled, it's pick up the cudgel for the winner (if it's an intra-party scuffle as in the case of the Rockefeller-Nixon scramble).

This is precisely what happened in the Nixon case.

This column was curious, from a scheduling standpoint, as to just what the "junior senator from Pennsylvania" had done — specifically — along the Nixon campaign trail (again in view of his initial support of Mr. Rockefeller over Mr. Nixon). This is what we discovered:

From the time Congress adjourned on October 14 until the election there was hardly a day he wasn't on the road campaigning in behalf of the Nixon-Agnew ticket. A look at this galloping record is interesting:

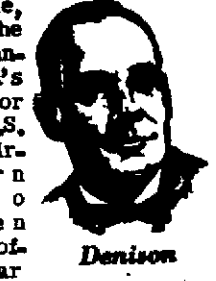

From October 16 through October 22 the Philadelphiaan virtually lived in the Pittsburgh area, campaigning in the city itself more than a half-dozen times, with spurts during the week-long stand-ins at nearby areas such as Johnstown, Altoona, Carnegie, McKeesport, Oakmont, Waynesburg and Washington (Pa.). He also scurried down to Washington (D.C.).

The following week, the last week before the election, his campaign base was the City of Brotherly Love, with forays to Reading and Pittsburgh the first part of the week, then winding up in Pennsylvania and New Jersey with the Republican "Truth Squad."

It was in New Jersey while heading up a four-man GOP "Truth Squad" that the unflappable Hugh Scott and his crew unexpectedly crossed warpaths with Democratic presidential hopeful Hubert Humphrey in a hotel, whereupon there was a cordial "Dr. Livingstone, I presume" greeting proffered Mr. Humphrey by a grinning Hugh Scott (although in opposition politically, the two have always had a cordial personal relationship).

What about the other "prime mover" from Pennsylvania in behalf of the Rockefeller candidacy — namely, Governor Shafer? He too has been on the Nixon campaign trail, actually more so than Senator Scott, all of which was detailed earlier by this column.

The point is, these two key Pennsylvania Republicans may have labored diligently in the Rockefeller vineyard initially, but it can hardly be said they didn't go grape guns in behalf of Richard Milhous Nixon in the showdown!

SYLVIA PORTER

State-Local Tax Votes

As you voted yesterday on an all-time record total of State and local proposals, you made it unmistakably clear that you have reached the limit of your tolerance for ballooning State and local taxes and spending.

The breakthrough in this area will come during the new Administration.

Laws will be passed to channel funds from the Federal Government on a no-strings-attached or block basis to our State and local governments.

The bi-partisan support developed during the election campaign for this revolutionary step in Federal-State and local financial relationship was lost along with other vitally important economic issues, but the fact is the support exists; it is formally recognized and it telegraphs action ahead.

(1) The need is obvious.

State and local spending for services and facilities, ranging from education to health, from police and fire protection to urban development, is skyrocketing year after year.

This type of spending is nearly six times what it was in 1948, only 20 years ago. In the sphere of education alone, spending has risen sevenfold. The expenditure total has crossed the $100 billion mark, joined the financial figures which are so huge they defy our comprehension and projections are for more of the same.

(2) You increasingly resent, and you showed this in your votes yesterday, the steady climb in State and local taxes and tax rates to finance the projects. (In some areas, property taxes have jumped to 25 per cent of the property's income value, meaning a 25 per cent excise tax on the homeowner.) You also are increasingly resisting debt issues as a way to finance the spending. Yet, since the spending is either imperative or highly desirable, there is no way to halt or certainly to reverse the trend.

(3) The present system of Federal grants to local governments "died" to specific purposes is an object lesson in how not to do it. Today's system is utterly befuddling, dreadfully wasteful and inefficient, extremely difficult for local officials to untangle and use.

As Chase Manhattan Bank vice president William F. Butler figured out recently, the $20 billion a year which the Federal government gives State-local governments is paid out through 162 specific programs involving 400 different appropriations, its flow is administered by 21 agencies and departments, 150 bureaus, 400 regional offices. Wryly commented Butler: "there must be a harder way to do it."

(3) While you might wonder why the Federal government doesn't simply let the States and cities collect the money directly, it makes much more sense to have the Internal Revenue Service collect the money and then turn it back.

The costs of collecting Federal taxes are far below the costs of collecting taxes at the State and local levels. The IRS is a far more efficient tax collecting agency than the collecting arm of any State or city; it's estimated that for each $1 of taxes collected by the Federal government, the localities would get pennies. The machinery for the tax collection and distribution is already in existence and no additional big bureaucracy would be necessary. The "round trip" for your taxes actually is the simplest, quickest route.

The 1968 election campaign revealed very little about fundamental economic issues but it did speed the timetable for this more generous sharing of Federal tax revenues with the local governments.

When the Vietnam war actually ends and the "peace dividend" begins to appear, action will become urgent. In the meantime, as you bend under the burden of higher taxes and higher State and local debts in coming months, you may get some comfort from the thought that relief is on the way.

There was something on the mantel. One, two, three glasses. Shot glasses. The head began to come slowly off the pillow. They were filled with something brownish. It was an illusion. It had to be. A trick of a monumental hangerover. Without looking, he reached for a cord and a buzzer. It was there, pinned to the sheet under the pillow. He pressed, and waited.

The door opened. It had been unlocked. An orderly came in. He was smiling. He was fat and walked like a duck. "I knew you'd be awake soon," he said. "The day is Monday, the time is 2 p.m., and you're in a rest home in Pennsylvania. You have been missing from home for three weeks and you are in no trouble with the police. Your parents will be here in an hour. Anything I can do for you, sir?" Reggie hurt all over. He almost worked up a smile. "You know all the answers before I ask the questions," he whispered. "Are those drinks whiskey?" He pointed. The orderly nodded. "They are indeed, sir. We have a special private treatment here — very private. You get one drink every hour on the hour." He looked at the mantel. "You are three behind."

"Is it medicated?" Reggie said. The orderly grinned. "It's real enough. Eighty-five proof, sir. The management feels that no one can fight a real drinker. Therefore, we join 'em. Provided, that is, that the patient doesn't tell his family the kind of treatment he's getting."

Reggie put himself up on one elbow. "Bring them over," he croaked. "And hold them to my mouth one by one. How much will it cost my people to keep me here?" The orderly fetched the shot glasses. "Three hundred a week, I believe."

"Fine," Reggie said. "That's dandy. Now give me those drinks and my watch. I may want to spend the winter here." ...

JAMES RESTON

The Consolation of History

(C) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — This has been a hard election, and there are many who believe it has wounded and divided the nation, but the American people have short memories and instinctively accept the result of the vote, no matter how close. This, at least, is the consolation of American political history.

With the old ghastly exception of 1860, when the South chose to use the election of Abraham Lincoln as a pretext for secession, the American people have put aside all the provocative charges and threats of the campaign and promptly accepted the winner as president of all the people.

As soon as the vote is clear, as Sidney Hyman observed in "The American President," "The nation decrees an act of oblivion on the mischances and partisan claims of the recent past. A decision by a part of the nation is converted into a decision of the sovereign whole ... well, we'll go along with it, we say, in that most meaningful of Americanisms. . ."

John F. Kennedy won the presidency over Richard Nixon in 1960 with less than a majority of the whole vote. In a few months Mr. Nixon was virtually forgotten, only to rise again in 1968. In other less mature democracies, so close an election has often led to civil disorder and even to civil war, but the instinct to forget the last contest and to accept the result of even the most vicious campaigns has been evident in the United States almost from the beginning.

This will come together and unite in spirit was first evident in the election of 1800, when Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr received the same number of votes in the electoral college and Jefferson finally won by a single vote in the House of Representatives.

Much the same thing happened in 1824, when John Quincy Adams was chosen over Andrew Jackson in the House, though Jackson had more electoral and apparently more popular votes.

In 15 other elections men were elected to the presidency though they got less than 50 per cent of the total votes: William Henry Harrison, 1840; James K. Polk, 1844; Zachary Taylor, 1848; James Buchanan, 1856; James A. Garfield, 1880; Grover Cleveland, 1884 and 1892; Benjamin Harrison, 1888; William McKinley, 1896 and 1900; William Howard Taft, 1908; Woodrow Wilson, 1912 and 1916; Harry Truman, 1948, and John Kennedy, 1960.

Even in 1876, when Samuel Tilden led Rutherford B. Hayes in both the popular and electoral vote, Hayes was finally accepted despite considerable evidence of fraud, and Tilden retired from the battle satisfied that he had the best of all worlds; he had won the presidency, he said, and didn't have to suffer the cares and burdens of the office.

Actually, the charges and countercharges of the 1968 election were mild compared to the savage campaigns of many of these other past elections. Nevertheless, they were sharp enough to divide the nation if the voters really believed them.

If the American people really believed that Richard Nixon was an untrustworthy man who was leading the nation inevitably to economic depression and international chaos, or that Mr. Humphrey was a weak and weary man determined to perpetuate the Johnson blunders of the past, then it might indeed be difficult for the tens of millions of losers to accept the result.

The vast majority of the people will "go along," however, for they do not really believe all the gloomy threats and predictions of candidates and columnists. After the first few months of the campaign, they become immune to the worst of the nonsense, and accept the result, sometimes with regret, often with doubt and even foreboding, but in the end almost with relief to have the ballots counted at last.

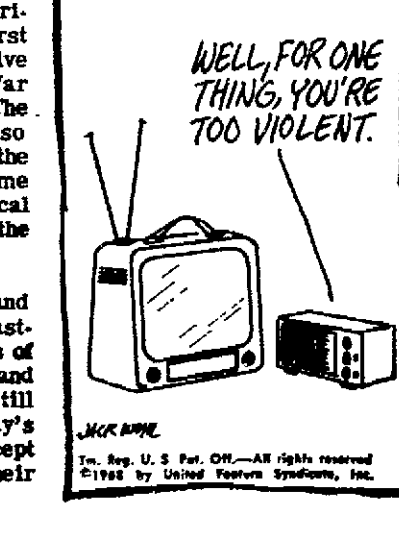

This does not mean that the system of American government is always right. "It has led," says James MacGregor Burns, to a government by fits and starts, to a statecraft that has not been able to supply the steady leadership and power necessary for the conduct of our affairs."

There has often been a serious lag, he adds, in the speed and effectiveness with which the national government has coped with emerging crises.

"The record is a disturbing one. The steady, moderate action on slavery that was so desperately needed in the 1840s and 1850s finally came, immoderately and at frightful cost, in the 1860s, and 1870s. American participation in the first real efforts at collective security came after World War I. The anti-depression measures so critically necessary in the 1930s, if not before, became government and political commitments only in the 1940s and 1950s. . ."

The catalogue of failures and tardy remedies could be vastly extended and the dangers of precisely this kind of slow and divided government are still the nightmare of Tuesday's election. But the people accept it because that has been their way from the start.

State

Democrats, however, have lost the state and won the presidency—the last time in 1948 with Harry Truman.

The third party candidacy of George C. Wallace, its strength shrinking in the campaign's final weeks, casts a fuzzy but emotional picture of race and crime over Pennsylvania.

It made politicians and polls extremely cautious, placed the Keystone State in a toss-up stage, and turned the re-election bid of U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark into a cliffhanger reminiscent of his successful 1956 and 1962 battles. Clark was challenged by Republican Richard S. Schweiker and three minor party candidates.

There were 5,999,364 Pennsylvanians registered in 9,492 precincts, with Republicans ahead by 60,000. The total, however, is down 83,000 from 1960 when Democrats, with a 3,000 registration edge, helped John F. Kennedy take the state from Nixon by 106,000. It's also off 129,000 from 1964. That year President Johnson piled up a 1.5 million majority, including a record 431,000 in Philadelphia.

The crucial Senate race pitted age versus youth—and the 67-year-old Clark made his experience and long-time dovish position on Vietnam the main issues for a new six-year term.

Schweiker, handsome, 42-year-old, four-term Congressman, took a mild hawkish war stance. He plugged hard for youth and change, calling Clark shop-worn and old-hat.

Clark is a millionaire liberal whose 1951 election as reform mayor of Philadelphia ended 68 years of Republican control of the nation's fourth largest city. He had bucked top-of-the-ticket trends to win his first two Senate races.

In 1956, while Dwight D. Eisenhower won Pennsylvania by 592,000 votes, Clark upset incumbent James H. Duff, a former governor, by 18,000 in a squeaker. In 1962, Republican William W. Scranton won the governorship in a 486,000-vote landslide as Clark won by 104,000.

Besides electing a U.S. Senator, Pennsylvania also chose 27 Congressmen, which could be crucial if the presidency winds up in the House. The Democrats had a 14-13 edge in the 9th Congress, until the death this summer of Rep. Elmer J. Holland, a Democrat.

Also named were a new state treasurer, auditor general, State Superior Court judge, and most of the new Republican-controlled legislature—all 203 House seats and half of the 50 Senate seats.

A $28 million bond issue to pay a bonus to Vietnam veterans had little pre-election opposition—but it was the first time voters have been asked to approve such a referendum while a war was still in progress.

Long Lists of Local Issues Complicate Many Ballots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Measures ranging from liquor to taxes to voting ages were decided in at least 33 states Tuesday.

Long lists of local issues complicated many ballots, delaying some results until late Wednesday.

Georgia, for instance, had a voluminous ballot containing 23 constitutional amendments, including a change in the method of electing the governor. It was designed to prevent two-governor deadlocks.

Alabama and Florida voted on amendments to let their governors serve two consecutive terms.

New Hampshire voters had the most novel local question—whether or not to retain in their state constitution a clause permitting the governor the right to declare war without the sanction of the U.S. Congress.

Pennsylvanians voted on a proposal to provide bonus payments for Vietnam war veterans.

Illinois's proposal to float $1 billion in bonds to pay for water and air pollution, and water recreation programs, was the biggest money measure.

But New Jersey decided a $990-million bond issue, the biggest in that state's history.

Semidry Utah voted on liquor-by-the-drink, while Nevada, the neighbor gambling state, had to decide on a private lottery which proposed giving 30 percent of the profits to the state.

Republicans Capture Governorships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans captured governorships in Indiana and Vermont in Tuesday's elections and were leading in efforts to oust Democrats in Iowa and New Hampshire.

Democrat Frank Licht ousted GOP Gov. John H. Chafee in Rhode Island and Democratic candidates had the edge in incomplete returns in efforts to take Montana and New Mexico from the GOP column.

Secretary of State Edgar D. Whitcomb, a Republican, beat Democratic Lt. Gov. Robert L. Rock for the governorship of Indiana to succeed Democratic Gov. Roger D. Branigan, who was barred by state law from running again.

Deane C. Davis, 67-year-old Montpelier Republican, returned Vermont's statehouse to its traditional GOP column by defeating Democratic Lt. Gov. John J. Daley, Gov. Philip H. Hoff, a Democrat, chose not to run again.

Democrats retained two governorships, in Texas where Lt. Gov. D. Preston Smith beat GOP challenger Paul Eggers, and in Missouri, where Gov. Warren E. Hearnes beat Lawrence K. Roos to become the first Democratic two-term governor.

In other races, partial returns showed Republicans holding their own to retain governorships in five states—Arizona, Arkansas, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin.

Democrats had the lead in Delaware, Illinois, Kansas, North Carolina, North Dakota and West Virginia.

Jamestown Gives HHH 2,000-Vote Plurality

JAMESTOWN — Voters in the city of Jamestown made their choice for president very clear Tuesday when they gave Democrat Hubert Humphrey a 2,000-vote plurality over Republican Richard Nixon.

Unofficial results show Humphrey received 8,415 votes, while Nixon trailed with 6,403. Third Party Candidate George Wallace was far behind with only 362 votes.

Throughout the remainder of Chautauque County, Nixon was able to overcome the Humphrey margin of Jamestown and Dunkirk. Humphrey outpolled Nixon in Dunkirk by more than 3,000 votes. With all but five townships reporting late last night, Nixon was leading county-wide by more than 1,000 votes, indicating that many Republicans had split their tickets for Vice President Humphrey.

Humphrey's coattail apparently helped Democrat Paul O'Dwyer in the race for United States Senate. In Jamestown, O'Dwyer defeated incumbent Republican Senator Jacob K. Javits by a vote of 6,461 to 6,193. Javits, however, was a big winner throughout the rest of New York State.

In the Family Court contest, Democrat August R. Jankowski easily defeated incumbent Judge John H. Hallenback in the city of Jamestown by a vote of 8,495 to 6,110.

The combined vote for the cities of Jamestown and Dunkirk was 12,504 for Jankowski and 8,635 for Hallenback.

In the Congressional race, Jamestown voters favored GOP candidate James Hastings over Democrat Wilbur White Jr. 7,503 to 5,892. Jamestown Assemblyman Jess J. Present, making a bid for the State Senate, easily defeated Democrat Edison LeRoy of Jamestown, 7,964 to 6,331.

Yesterday's victory in Jamestown marked the first time Assemblyman Present has scored a victory in his home city.

In the race for assemblyman in the 150th District, newcomer John W. Beckman, Westfield, was the winner in Jamestown over Democrat Edmund A. Berndt, Brocton. Unofficial results show Beckman outpolled Ned Berndt by only 300 votes, 6,947 to 6,628.

Dems Appear To Control Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats withstood heavy challenges from Republicans in Senate and House races Tuesday and appeared headed for continued control in the 91st Congress, but with narrowed margins.

Republicans took seats from the Democrats in Maryland and Florida and led in three other states, but the big Democratic holdover majority from the 90th Congress seemed too big to be overcome.

In the House, Republican gains were slight in several eastern states where they had counted on picking up seats. The strong showing by the incumbent Democrats made it unlikely the GOP could capture control.

Still in doubt was the number of state delegations each party will control in the event the House has to pick the next President.

The Republican Senate victors were Charles McC. Mathias in Maryland and Edward Gurney in Florida. Mathias defeated Sen. Daniel B. Brewster and Gurney beat former Gov. LeRoy Collins for the Florida seat vacated by Sen. George A. Smathers.

Republican senatorial candidates led in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Oklahoma.

The small number of turnovers in House races came as a surprise. Incumbents generally had been thought to be in trouble with the widespread national dissatisfaction over the war in Vietnam and riots in the cities.

Republicans also had counted on redistricting to help them gain seats in New Jersey, but all three Democrats they had picked as likely targets won re-election.

Counting of votes in the three-way presidential race will determine whether, for the first time in '44 years, the new Congress will be given the task of choosing the nation's chief executive and vice president.

This will happen if Republican Richard M. Nixon, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey and George C. Wallace, the American Independent party candidate, each fails to win a majority of the electoral vote in Tuesday's balloting or when the Electoral College meets Dec. 16.

The possibility of the decision going to Congress adds a new dimension to the House races, since the states vote as a unit in selecting a president and it is one state, one vote, with an absolute majority of 26 needed to elect. Thus control of the state delegation becomes of paramount importance.

Although an Associated Press pre-election survey showed the Democrats likely to retain control of the House, Republican gains could tip the balance of control in individual state delegations so that neither party has the 26 votes that would be needed to elect its candidate.

Race

And Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia won re-election. In the first governor's race decided, Republican Deane Davis captured the Vermont governor's chair vacated by a retiring Democrat.

Popular vote, eight per cent of voting units. Humphrey 3,275,499 or 38 per cent; Nixon 3,534,903 or 41 per cent; Wallace 1,710,576 or 20 per cent.

Electoral vote: Humphrey carried the District of Columbia with three electoral votes and led in 10 states with 150 electoral votes; Nixon carried two states with 12 electoral votes and led in 12 states with 129 electoral votes; Wallace carried one state with 10 electoral votes and led in four states with 38. Needed to win 270.

Senate: Elected, three Democrats, two Republicans; leading, five Democrats, nine Republicans; holdovers, 40 Democrats, 26 Republicans. Needed for majority 51.

House: Elected, 49 Democrats, 18 Republicans; leading, 78 Democrats, 71 Republicans. Needed for majority 218.

Democrats Seem Likely To Retain Senate Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans captured Democratic Senate seats in Maryland and Florida Tuesday and bid strongly to take over Democratic posts in Indiana, Oklahoma and other states.

However, the Democrats, with a big holdover lead, appeared likely to retain Senate control in the 91st Congress with a reduced margin of six or eight seats.

The first overturn in the 32 seats at stake came in Maryland where Charles McC. Mathias, a four-term GOP Congressman, ousted Democratic Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, bidding for a second term. Independent George P. Mahoney trailed badly.

Rep. Edward Gurney, a Republican defeated former Florida Gov. Leroy Collins handily to give the GOP a second overturn. Gurney won the post being vacated by Sen. George A. Smathers, D. Fla.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut gave a lift to the Democrats by winning handily in his fight for a second term. He defeated former Rep. Edwin H. May, Jr.

In Kentucky, Jefferson County Judge Marlow W. Cook held the Senate seat for the Republicans by narrowly defeating Katherine Paden. Cook will succeed Republican Sen. Thurston B. Morton, who retired.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D. S.C., won his first full term by trouncing Republican Marshall J. Parker who made a much closer race of it two years ago.

Former Alabama Lt. Gov. James B. Allen, a strong supporter of George C. Wallace, easily won his state's contest, besting Republican Perry O. Hooper. Allen will succeed Democratic Sen. Lister Hill, retiring after 45 years in Congress.

Georgia Sen. Herman E. Talmadge easily won re-election for a third term, defeating Republican E. Earl Patton Jr.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, Republican, easily won a second term in Colorado, beating former Gov. Stephen McNichols.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., also won re-election handily in North Carolina. He defeated Republican Robert V. Somers.

GOP Rep. Bob Dole, captured the Kansas seat being vacated by veteran Sen. Frank Carlson. Dole easily bested Democrat William I. Robinson.

The present lineup is 63-37 in favor of the Democrats.

HOT PEAR-TURKEY SANDWICH

Slices of golden fresh Bartlett pears are unusual topping for this hot turkey sandwich which provides a taste treat which is really different.

Imaginative New Flavor Combination

Freshly cut wedges of golden ripe Bartlett pears add the crowning touch to this tempting Pear Turkey Sandwich. Underneath, thick slices of turkey are placed on hot buttered toast. A tangy topping of celery, onion, cheese, and bacon adds the final spark making this a sandwich that everyone will enjoy.

Firm and juicy, fresh Bartlett pears from the Pacific Coast make welcome guests wherever they go. Easy to pack and carry, Bartlett pears greet the out-of-doors with sparkling freshness. They make great treasures for knapsack or back-pack.

As easy pick-me-ups, fresh Bartlett pears are ideal for packed lunches. There's no need to peel the pears since the golden skin is tender and flavorful. For company and other occasions, fresh Bartlett pears are perfect mixers. Most important, with Bartlett pears on the menu, you know there's plenty of good eating waiting for you.

Fresh pears keep well in the refrigerator. As you want to eat them, take a few out and leave them on the counter to ripen. Within a day or two, the pears will turn a golden ripe color, ready for you to eat, or include in one of your menus.

HOT PEAR - TURKEY SANDWICH
2 fresh Bartlett pears
4 slices buttered toast
4 slices cooked turkey
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely snipped green onions
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons crumbled crisply fried bacon
Core pears and cut in wedges. Arrange turkey slices on toast.

Combine mayonnaise, celery, onion and spices. Spread over turkey. Arrange pear wedges on top and sprinkle with cheese and bacon. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 2 luncheon-size, open-faced sandwiches.

EXPAND THE CHILI
Canned chili con carne is one of the quickest ways to satisfy hunger on a chilly day, but it's even more so served over hot, cooked macaroni to give the widely known chili-mac.

After trying it with assorted macaroni shapes to keep interest up, up, up, start with noodles and chili. Pour heated chili over broad noodles or circle the fine noodles around an individual casserole of chili after heating in the oven.

Soup for Breakfast

Except with teen-agers, who discovered it on their own, soup for breakfast is a surprise in itself. (A pleasant surprise, as those who have tried it will testify.) Make it a 3-layer soup, and the surprises keep on coming, right to the bottom of the bowl.

The idea is really intriguing. You pick out a favorite condensed soup -- bean with bacon, for example. While it's heating, you line the soup bowls with "Goldfish" crackers, croutons, or corn chips, for a crunchy, bottom layer. Then you pour on the hot soup. It's the middle layer. For the top layer, take your choice of chopped celery, silvers of green pepper, cubes of apple, or even grapes, or orange slices. People who get this 3-layer soup for breakfast will be even more pleased than surprised.

Exotic as soup for breakfast may seem to some adult Americans, it's a heartening part of the day's first meal for people of other lands. Scottish highlanders warm up for work with a soup of mutton and barley. Japanese farmers and fishermen always have soup made with bean curd for breakfast.

French farmers have a big French soup before a day in the fields. A 3-layer soup for breakfast, however, is an American innovation. Like the breakfast soups of other countries, it's delicious and nourishing; unlike them it's quick. With condensed soup on the shelf, breakfast is ready in just four minutes, the time it takes for the soup to heat.

3-LAYER BEAN SOUP
1 can (11 1/2 ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
1 soup can water
Cheese "Goldfish" crackers + Chopped green pepper + +
Blend soup and water. Heat; stir now and then. For each serving, place about 2 tablespoons crackers in bowl. Pour soup over. Garnish with green pepper. Makes 2 or 3 servings.
+ For "Goldfish" crackers, substitute croutons.

Beatty School Students Term Mock Election Huge Success

By KATHY BRENAN

On Oct. 4th the "Match" staff sponsored a mock election in which Nixon received 528 votes, Humphrey 442, and Wallace 145. There were twenty-two winners. Of the total student body 1137 or 76 per cent voted. On Friday, Nov. 1, another election was held following an active campaign week under the supervision of the history teachers. The purposes of this activity were "to stimulate interest and participation among the student body, to emphasize the campaign issues and to inform the people of the platforms, and to generate wholesome school spirit." The surprising result of the election showed that Humphrey won with a total of 634 votes while Nixon had only 571 and Wallace 92. A total of 1297 people or 88 per cent of the school voted. The election can be declared a success for a number of reasons. During the first election many students voted as their parents shall or for their party affiliation. In the second election the students were better informed on the issues so they chose the man fitting most of their views, although others were just swayed by their emotions. Finally, it can also be termed a success because more people voted the second time during their free minutes than when previously done during homeroom period.

A victory dance was held Nov. 1 under the leadership of Ronald Firestone. Certificate awards were given for the most original campaign costume. Richard Nufer, Kathy Rickert, and Sharon Barker were winners. The results of the election were announced at the dance. Proceeds from the dance will cover the campaign expenses. The first pep rally of the year at Beatty occurred seventh period Oct. 28 for all ninth graders. It preceded the football game with Kane. Under the leadership of George Knopick, James Beach, Antonio Scordo, and Thomas Scarcella, the members of the football team were introduced. Next the cheerleaders led the students in school cheers. The rally was closed with the Alma Mater.

The National Junior Honor Society is planning a Thanksgiving Dance on Nov. 22. The Cornucopia Clomp will be for the benefit of needy families in Warren.

During third period, Oct. 31 the police sponsored an assembly for the seventh grade. Trooper Gary Rain talked and showed a film to the students on automobile accidents.

Again this year a club for overweight girls will be headed by Mrs. Helen Olson, the girls' gym teacher. Peeling Off Pounds Sensibly, more generally known as the POPS Club, has approximately 125 members. This club is continuing to be very successful.

On Tuesday, Nov. 12 the annual Parents Night will be held. Promptly at 7:45 p.m. parents will report to his student's first period class on Tuesday. During the ten minute class the teacher will explain the course and his grading system. The Beatty Parents Group will serve refreshments.

During first period on Nov. 4 the Citizenship League held a mock meeting for the seventh grade. The purpose of the meeting was to inform the students about the League's functions. The Beatty constitution was also explained. Next Tuesday, Nov. 12 all seventh graders will elect ten seventh grade representatives to the League.

Another Step Toward Chamber Accreditation

Warren County Chamber of Commerce takes another step toward its goal of accreditation Thursday when members of the 11 subcommittees designated to make the categorical evaluation of the chamber meet to discuss the evaluation processes.

Once evaluation of the chamber facilities has been made, a report of the evaluation will be submitted to the National Chamber of Commerce organization for approval.

The recent redevelopment of the local chamber has been aimed at acquiring accreditation. Presently there are only four accredited chambers in the state, and only 110 in the country.

Former Slave, 109, Always Republican, Votes Democratic

SALEM, N.J. (AP) — Alex Turner, 109-year-old former slave who has voted Republican since he cast his first ballot for James A. Garfield in 1880, voted for Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey Tuesday.

Tanner, a retired carpenter, remembers seeing Confederate soldiers returning home from the Civil War. He is a native of Lynchburg, Va.

He lives with his great-granddaughter, Gladys E. Lindsey.

Machine Trucked to Island So Two Residents Can Vote

BREAD AND CHEESE ISLAND, Del. (AP) — A truck delivered a voting machine to this out-of-the-way spot Tuesday, and both residents of the district cast their ballots.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Sheats Sr., who live in this marshy area known as Bread and Cheese Island, hadn't voted in the past two elections. No provisions had been made for them after reapportionment, officials said.

John A. Dillman, Republican candidate for the Delaware state House of Representatives, heard of their plight. He prevailed on New Castle County election officials to get a voting machine into the district, which really isn't an island.

The Sheatses cast straight Republican ballots on the machine. It was trucked to their house, then plugged into their electric current.

The Sheatses, also hired as election clerks in the district, reported their vote.

Dillman, three election officials, the truck driver, a reporter and a photographer showed up for the voting.

Mennonite Family of Four Overpowers Two Escapees

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A Mennonite family of four, which doesn't believe in violence, overpowered two prison escapees who forced their way into their rural home Monday night. Tuesday, they thanked "a higher power" for helping them.

The two escapees from West Virginia State Prison, who had one rifle between them, later were arrested by State Police. They were charged with robbing two men at a migrant labor camp near the Mennonite home of Homer Rosenberry in St. Thomas, a small south central Pennsylvania community.

A third escapee from the prison, identified as Dale Gordon, 21, of Fairmont, W. Va., later was arrested in Chambersburg, charged with vagrancy and held in Franklin County prison. State Police said they also would charge him with armed robbery in the same holdup.

Mrs. Rosenberry, 56, said she, her husband, 53, their son Mark, 17 and daughter Mary Jane, 15 were eating dinner when the escapees pulled up in a car about 5:30 p. m.

The two, identified by police as Elmer Robinson, 38 of Lewisville, Ky. and Albert Suck, 26 of McCommas, W. Va., made Mark let them in, Mrs. Rosenberry said.

"They said they wanted us to hide them," she said. "They said they had just killed two people and it won't take long to kill four more."

This was an apparent reference to Billy Dickson, 58 and Irvin Simmers, 65, both of St. Thomas, who the two escapees are accused of robbing before they arrived at the Rosenberrys.

Dickson told police he was creased by a bullet during the holdup, and both men reported they were beaten with a rifle.

They were treated at Chambersburg Hospital and released.

Mrs. Rosenberry said the family was forced to sit in the living room and surrender the family shotgun. At one point, she fired three eggs for the men but they refused to eat them.

About 7 p. m., Suck took Rosenberry, a railroad worker, outside where the two family cars were parked. Robinson remained inside.

"He (Robinson) let go of the shotgun and asked each of us if we wanted it," Mrs. Rosenberry said. "We said we didn't. We didn't want to shoot."

With the gun still on the floor, Rosenberry and Suck returned, and Rosenberry made a dive for the weapon. A struggle took place, between Rosenberry and Robinson, while at the same time Mark began fighting with Suck for the other gun. Mrs. Rosenberry and Mary Jane each picked up a gun during the scuffles, ran outside and hid them.

Mrs. Rosenberry then phoned police and another son, Martin, 28, who helped hold the men until troopers arrived.

"I didn't like to do it," Rosenberry said. "It's a little bit against my convictions. We believe in nonresistance. I had in mind to see it through and do as they wanted us to. But I had the opportunity, and at the spur of the moment I acted."

To which Mrs. Rosenberry added: "I believe a higher power was helping us."

Billow Named to Two New Positions at Forge

Alfred Rau, executive vice president, National Forge Division, has announced that the board of directors of National Forge Company has elected Marvin L. Billow an officer of the corporation with the title vice president and director of marketing, National Forge Division. In addition, he has been elected executive vice president and a member of the board of directors of the National Forge Export Corporation.

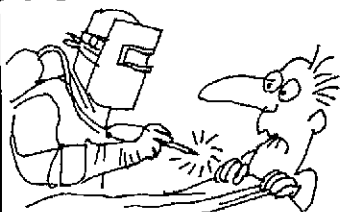

In these new positions, Billow will be responsible for the total world-wide marketing effort of the National Forge Division. Since joining National Forge in 1960, Billow has served as marketing manager of the diesel, compressor and turbine industries, and since January, 1966, as director of marketing, responsible for all National Forge Division sales to customers within the United States.

Billow obtained his bachelor and masters degrees from

BILLOW
The University of Michigan and was associated with Aluminum Extrusions, Inc. and Jaqua Company in Michigan prior to joining National Forge.

SCIENCE SKETCHES

A 'BLOODLESS SCALPEL' that allows surgeons to make clean incisions without fear of hemorrhage has been developed at the University of Utah. A highly ionized gas is concentrated into a thin jet at the tip of an insulated hand piece. The jet—with a minimum temperature of 10,000 degrees F.—literally "vaporizes" the moisture in tissue.

TROPICAL CLIMATES are not the only places flamingos are found. Some live high in the Andes Mountains.

Allegheny Reports Losses

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Allegheny Airlines today reported a third quarter operating profit of $720,000 and a net loss of $589,000, as compared to an operating loss of $126,000 and a net loss of $1,395,000 for the same quarter of 1967.

On July 1, 1966, Lake Central Airlines, a local service airline operating in the Mid-West, was merged into Allegheny. The 1967 comparative figures reflect the combined results of the two companies for this period. Lake Central had reported a net loss of $2,425,000 for the six months prior to merging with Allegheny.

For the year to date, operating profits of the two companies on a combined basis totaled $2,102,000, compared with an operating loss of $1,263,000 for the first nine months of 1967. At the net level, the company reported a net loss of $2,497,000 compared with a 1967 loss of $3,647,000.

President L. O. Barnes said that activities during the first quarter of the merged operations were largely devoted to integrating the operations and personnel of the two companies and that new schedules commencing the integration of the marketing areas of the companies were placed in effect on October 27th.

IMA to Hear Talk By Erie Consultant

MILLER

Earl C. Miller of Erie, consultant in industrial and business management, will speak at a meeting of the Industrial Management Association of Warren County on Monday evening, November 11. The meeting—designated as Executive Night by the Management Association—will be held at the Warren YMCA at 6:30 p. m. Miller will speak on the topic, "Profitable Management in Today's Economy—And Tomorrow's."

Miller's management experience includes a 19-year association with Erie Manufacturing Co., Erie, where he was senior vice president and a director of the company. He has served as operating head of that company's Clifton (N.J.) Division, as chairman of the board of directors of Erie of Canada Ltd., and as president of Erie International Services. He also has held top management positions with Tupper Manufacturing Corp., Farmville, Mass., and Erie Resistor Corp.

A graduate of Penn State University, Miller is a member of the International Law Association of Washington, D. C. He was the founding president of the International Trade Division of the Erie Chamber of Commerce.

In the roles of industrial executive and management consultant, Miller has conducted business in 18 countries of the world. He has dealt with every important facet of modern business and industrial administration—from manufacturing to the organization of corporate entities, from international sales to the acquisition and merging of companies. He has addressed many business audiences.

Eisenhower Coaching Staff Set For 1968

The Eisenhower High School coaching staff has many additions this year as three head coaching positions had to be filled following the 1967-68 school term.

Head football coach John Lasinger stepped down from the ranks of coaching while head basketball coach William Sherwood retired from his position.

Tom Firth

to become assistant cager coach.

Don Johns, former head wrestling coach, has moved on to Altoona High School where he was to become assistant wrestling coach. However, Marty Rusnak, head wrestling coach at Altoona, reportedly has left his position and there is a possibility that Johns might replace him.

Taking over the helm ball mentor is Thomas Firth. Firth is a former student of the Eisenhower school, graduating from Northern Area in 1956. While attending N.A. Firth played football under one of the county's finest coaches, Norge Luvison. He also played basketball and ran track.

While in college, Slippery Rock State, he was a member of the varsity soccer team. He graduated from Slippery Rock in 1960 with a B.S. in Health Education. Firth spent two years as assistant junior high basketball coach in Punxsutawney, Pa. and came to Eisenhower in 1962.

Since then he has been coaching junior high and jayvee football for six years and has held the position as assistant track coach for that period also. Firth is married with two children and is the Boy's Physical Education instructor at Ike.

Stepping up to replace Sherwood as head basketball coach will be Ronald Dunbar. Dunbar is a 1960 graduate of Evans City high school where he played four years of football and basketball.

He attended Edinboro State College and graduated with a B.S. in History. While at Edinboro Dunbar played two years of basketball.

He has been assistant football coach for three years and was junior high coach for two years. He has a total of five years in as a coach.

Ron Dunbar

of assistant basketball coach in 1967. Besides his position of head basketball coach, Dunbar is varsity assistant football coach working under Firth.

Replacing Johns will be a former Warren High wrestler, Tony Ross. Ross graduated from Warren in 1963 where he wrestled for the Dragons at 95, 103 and 120 weight classes. As a freshman and sophomore Ross won the Section II title. In his senior year he was injured and wasn't able to wrestle in the Section II finals.

Ross attended Kent State University where he wrestled for four years. As a sophomore at Kent he won the Mid-American Conference title in 1965 in the 130 weight class. In 1966 he was forced to forfeit in the finals with a broken elbow; however, he finished second.

He graduated from Kent in June, 1968 with a B.S. in Physical Education. Ross is married and has no children.

Besides his duties as head wrestling coach, Ross instructs the Girl's Physical Education classes and is an assistant advisor to GAA. His duties in the girls classes are restricted to the gym with a teacher's aide, Mrs. Wick, in charge of the locker room.

Denny Engstrom, head track coach at Ike holds the title of having the most years in as a head coach then any other active coach in the county. Engstrom has held the position for six years.

He is 1955 graduate of Youngsville High School where he played four years of football under Frank Komus along with two years basketball and two years track.

Engstrom graduated from Upsala College in 1960 with an A.B. in English. He also has been assistant football coach in 1960, 1961 and 1968.

A highlight of Engstrom's coaching years was in 1965 when the Knight school hosted an exchange coach from the Republic of Guinea. It was also in 1965 when Eisenhower won district. Engstrom holds the record of sending a man to state every year since he has been track coach.

He is married and resides in Youngsville Pa. with his wife and daughter.

Jack Norton is a 1964 graduate of Northern Area where he played football and basketball. He graduated from Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a B.A. in history and is Jayvee coach on the football staff.

Norton lettered four years in baseball at IUP and teaches social studies at Ike. He is married with one child.

John Proksa is a 1967 graduate of Morehead State University with an A.B. in social studies. As a 1962 graduate of Duquesne High School he was active in football and track.

At the age of 24 he is in his second year of teaching and holds the esteem of being the only coach on the football staff who is a bachelor.

Among the other assistants on the Eisenhower coaching staff include Robert Hunt a 1967 graduate of Edinboro State College and Alvin Bean a 1968 graduate of Edinboro. Bean teaches social studies and Hunt instructs Spanish.

It will be Bean's job to assist Ross in the wrestling program while Hunt takes care of basketball along with Sherwood under the direction of Dunbar.

Penn State Peps Pass Defense Up

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Penn State emphasized pass defense Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's game here with Miami (Fla.).

"Miami (5-2) will be an awfully hard team to run against," said Nittany Lion coach Joe Paterno, whose team is 6-0.

Paterno said the Hurricanes have outstanding defensive ends in Ted Hendricks and Tony Cline.

Bowling Roundup

Don Frank topped all county bowlers last night as he rolled the only 600 game in the county. Frank picked off a 235-612 to take the honors. Along with his 235 game, Dick Falconer and Dale Gourley also hit the night high for men of 235. All three bowlers roll in the Pepsi League at Sugar Bowl Lanes.

Jan Darts hit the high for the women at Penn Lanes in the Tuesday Nites League with a 232. June McConnell carried the high series for women of a 168-495, rolling in the CVCC League at Riverside.

Marilyn Simones picked up the 5-10 and 5-7 splits last night while Margaret Wright converted the 5-8-10 split. Sylvia Gannoe picked up the 6-7 split at Penn.

Bowladrome — Carl Henninger 544, Don Munn 520, Pearl Grove 475, Janice Carlson 472.

COLLEGE POLL

Trojans' Grip Slipping; Ohio State On The Move

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Southern California Trojans held a slipping grip Tuesday on the No. 1 ranking in college football, and it looks as if they will need some strong knuckles to stay there.

The giants from the Pacific Coast, who have the season's leading Heisman Trophy contender in O. J. Simpson, are hosts in Los Angeles Saturday to one of their toughest rivals the University of California.

The Trojans may have to win — and win big — to stand off the pressure of similarly unbeaten Ohio State, which has a relatively mild weekend assignment against Wisconsin, victor in only one of its seven games.

Another top team, third-ranked Kansas, also puts its perfect record and high national standing against a dangerous league rival, Oklahoma, which has lost only to Notre Dame and Texas.

USC is a seven-point favorite over the Golden Bears while Kansas is rated a similar edge over Oklahoma, both games being played on the field of the favorites.

Southern Cal lost some favor with the panel of sports writers and broadcasters in The Asso-

Bengal Back Is Near AFL Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Robinson, rookie halfback on Cincinnati's expansion Bengals, has rushed to within 17 yards of the American Football League's rushing lead, statistics showed Tuesday.

Robinson, a 6-footer from Arizona, has gained 590 yards for the season to 607 for Hewitt Dixon of Oakland, who maintained his top position despite a gain of only 27 yards last Sunday.

Robinson rambled for 156 on 21 carries against Houston. That was only three yards less than he gained the week before. San Diego's Dick Post also had a big game, rushing for 151 yards, and is third over-all with 561. Another Rookie, Bob Holmes of Kansas City, is fourth with 538. He had been second but gained only 39 yards Sunday.

Jim Turner of New York has created another close battle, this one in the scoring race. Turner kicked six field goals and one extra point Sunday, giving him 83 points.

ciated Press poll when it had to score on a desperation pass in the final two minutes last Saturday for a 20-13 triumph over Oregon.

Of the 45 voters, only 19 thought Southern California was still the best while 14 favored Ohio State, winner over Michigan State 25-20. Kansas was No. 10 of the ballots. Tennessee and Penn State each collected a one first-place vote.

In the total points, rated on the basis of 20 points for a first place vote, 18 for second, etc., the Trojans' margin over the Buckeyes was 816 to 803. Kansas had 758.

After Kansas, completing the Top Ten were Penn State, No. 4, rated the best in the East; Tennessee, No. 5; Purdue, No. 6; Michigan, No. 7; Missouri, No. 8; Georgia, No. 9, and Texas, No. 10.

California, in 11th place, heads the Second Ten, followed by Notre Dame, Houston, Arkansas, Oregon State, Ohio U., Michigan State, Auburn, Wyoming and Louisiana State.

Penn State has a date with Miami (Fla.) this week. Tennessee meets Auburn in the night half of a Birmingham double-header that also sends Alabama against L.S.U., Purdue is at Minnesota, Michigan plays Illinois, Missouri meets Iowa State, Georgia faces Florida and Texas opposes Baylor.

The top 20, with first-place votes, records and total points:

1. USC 19	6-0 816
2. Ohio State 14	6-0 803
3. Kansas 10	7-0 758

WILL OUR RIVER LIVE?

Over the past couple of years I have had many discussions with biologists of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service regarding what I consider to be the changing conditions of the Allegheny River. In all of these conversations these biologists have been quick to tell me about what has happened on other rivers in all parts of the nation, but they have been extremely vague when a specific question pertaining to the Allegheny was asked.

The fact is they know as well as I do that until a comprehensive study has been made there is no specific answer to any specific question. Conditions differ on all bodies of water, from a farm pond to the largest of our fresh water lakes. And until such a comprehensive study is made on the Allegheny all any of us can do is consider the apparent facts, mix in some commonsense deductions, and come up with some very personal opinions.

Having done this (at least to the best of my ability), I have reached the conclusion that our local river is in far more serious trouble than most of us realize. In trouble that goes far beyond the fact that the fisherman isn't catching as many fish as he once could, or that the recreational use of the river has been considerably restricted.

Basically, the problem is directly connected to the theme of a prize-winning conservation film, "The River Must Live," put out by the Shell Oil Company two years ago. In this "in depth" study of Germany's Rhine River it was pointed out that values of pure streams to the fisherman, swimmer and boater were worth no more than secondary consideration; that what really counted to every citizen living on the watershed of any stream was the preservation of the aquatic life that functioned to purify the natural and man-made pollutants entering the stream from various sources. That unless these organisms could survive and perform their functions the stream would become an open sewer endangering the health of the community in spite of all anti-pollution measures.

This film impressed me tremendously. But I have been just as much impressed with our local problems through talking with the old timers I find fishing along the river bank. These old boys are truly observant, and they had the advantage of close association with the Allegheny over a good number of years.

So when I met up with a couple of them at the Starbrick access area the other day (and they weren't having any luck with their rods) we got to comparing the river today with what it was just a few years back.

The one gentleman said that he lived on the river's bank near the Airport Eddy. In this stretch of water that had once been one of the hottest spots on the river for all species of fish, and where he could have excellent luck any night after work, not only had the fishing fallen off, but the huge schools of minnow were gone, the thousands of frogs that formed a nightly chorus along the bank were gone, and he doubted that anything at all lived in the waters of the eddy.

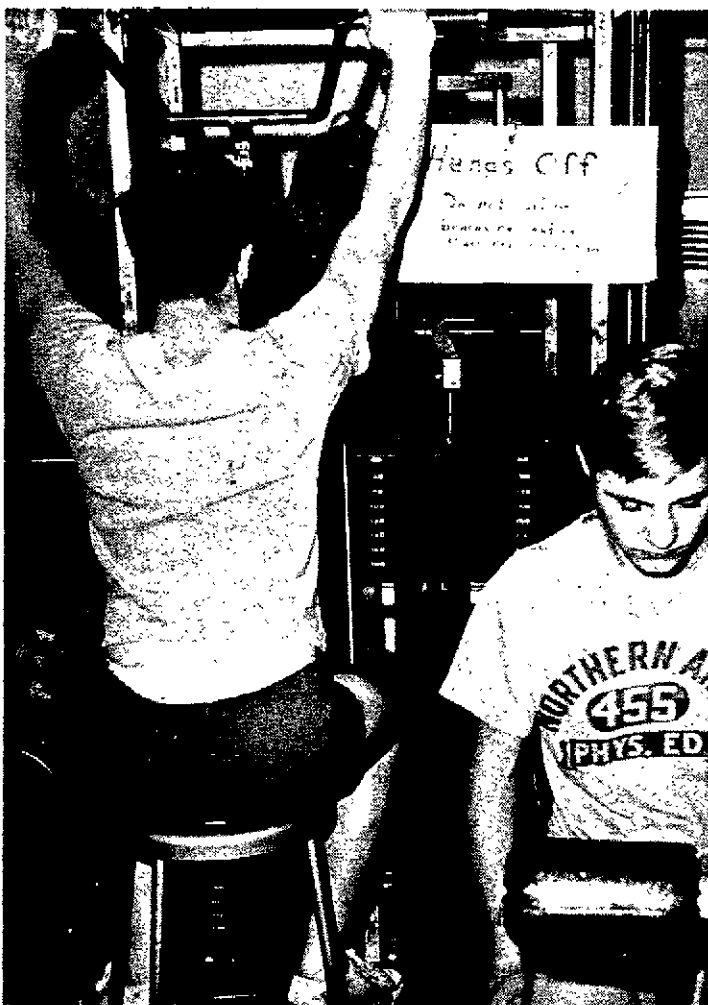

Why? It was his impression that the discharge from Warren's sewage plant was to blame. He said that ever since this plant had been in operation a decline in the river life had been noticeable.

This was the second time I had heard the sewage plant blamed for polluting the river. Another fisherman told me that prior to the operation of the plant he had no trouble at all in getting hellgrammites from the riffle below the discharge. But now he couldn't find a single one, and the odor of chloride was so strong he couldn't stand it.

But there are other sources of "indirect" pollution too that are contributing to the reduction of aquatic life in the river. One of these is the continuous silting of the river by the sand and gravel plant at the foot of Oak street. The deposit of silt on the river bottom is considered to be extremely detrimental to aquatic life as it blankets the bottom and actually suffocates these insects. The condition is worse now that a controlled river prevents flooding from carrying the silt off and scouring the bottom clean.

But going upriver from Warren, above most of the normal sources of pollution, the situation is still far from good. On the Glade riffle, where fresh water calms and huge schools of minnows were once prolific, the aquatic life had declined dramatically. And this holds true in almost every eddy and riffle upstream to the dam. It is my personal opinion that in this section of the river thermal pollution is the problem; but rather than hot water bringing about the changes it is cold water that is the culprit.

Regardless of what the causes may be, the fact remains that in just the past few years the aquatic life of the Allegheny River, from fishes to frogs and crayfish to caddis nymphs, has declined at an alarming rate. Unless we come to realize that our river is dying and do something about it before rigor mortis sets in, the Old Allegheny may become more of a problem than a blessing. For as the Shell Oil Company has pointed out --- the river must live.

UNIVERSAL GYMNASIUM

The famed Universal Gymnasium has recently been added to the Eisenhower High School's Physical Education Department. Sometimes called the Ten Station Circuit Trainer, the gymnasium is designed to develop the entire body. Among the ten stations are the abdominal board, pull-ups, dips, bench press, regular press, leg press, thighs and knee, lateral bar, leg lifts, and curl bar. Boy's Physical Education Instructor Thomas Firth uses the "circuit trainer" in his classes. Wheelchair Play Starts In Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel and Germany won the first gold medals Tuesday in the 17th International Stoke-Mandeville Games for the Paralyzed, better known as The Wheelchair Olympics.

Shoshana Sharabi, a 17-year-old polio victim from Israel, scored five victories and captured the gold medal in women's foil fencing.

Joachim Boehm, 25, a German who lost use of both legs in an auto accident, won the men's foil gold medal with five victories and one defeat. Edward Owen, a 22-year-old Illinois senior from Champaign, Ill., finished fourth.

The only finals scheduled for the opening day were in fencing and table tennis. The field included men and women from 28 nations. They wheeled about the Olympic Stadium and other venues in Ramat Gan, outside Tel Aviv, on a clear sunny day.

In the first round of the basketball tournaments, the U.S. men, led by Denver Braunum and Gary Odorowski, trounced Switzerland, 67-13. The American women lost to Argentina 4-1 in a very low scoring match.

Denver Linebacker Stars Against Pats

NEW YORK (AP) — It is not unlikely that at some point in Denver's game with Boston last Sunday, one of the Patriot backs turned to the linemen and asked, "What's he doing in here all the time?"

Denver linebacker John Huard might not have been in the Boston backfield all of the time in the Broncos' easy 35-14 victory, but he was there much of the time and Tuesday was named the American Football League's defensive player of the week by The Associated Press.

Huard, a second-year pro, made 10 tackles, high for Denver this year, helped on four others and was the major reason why Jim Nance gained only 51 yards in 21 tries and the Patriot ground attack managed 77 in 30 over-all.

Casper Leads $$$

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — With two tournaments to go, Billy Casper is closing in on pro golf's all-time money winning mark with a total 1968 bankroll of $203,769, according to PGA figures released Tuesday.

Jack Nicklaus won a record total $211,000 last year. His $155,285 total this year puts him in second place behind Casper.

He is followed by young Tom Weiskopf with $152,946 and aging Julius Boros with $148,310. Rounding out the top 10 were George Archer, $135,739; Arnold Palmer, $111,977; Lee Trevino, $107,007; Dan Sikles, $106,780; Miller Barber, $103,124; and Bob Lunn, $101,379.

Boosters To Meet

Tonight's meeting of the Warren Sports Boosters will honor players and parents of the golf and football teams. Films of the Dragon-Bradford season finale last Saturday will also be shown at the affair, which gets under way at 8:30 p.m. in the High School cafeteria.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

McLain Named MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit's Denny McLain, 31-game winner who last week won the Cy Young award as the American League's best pitcher, was unanimously named the league's Most Valuable Player Tuesday.

McLain, who led the Tigers to their first pennant in 23 years, is the first American League pitcher to win both awards, Don Newcombe and Sandy Koufax, both Dodgers, won both awards in the National League in 1956 and Koufax in 1963.

The 24-year-old right-hander also is the first AL pitcher to win the MVP award by a unanimous vote, the first AL pitcher to win it at all since Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz in 1952 and the first Tiger to receive the award since Hal Newhouse, also a pitcher, in 1944 and 1945.

MVP Facts And Figures

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are the American League Most Valuable Players since the award was begun in 1931: 1931—Denny McLain, Detroit; 1932—Carl Yastrzemski, Bos.; 1933—Frank Robinson, Balt.; 1934—Zoltie Versalles, Minn.; 1935—Brooks Robinson, Balt.; 1936—Elston Howard, N.Y.; 1937—Mickey Mantle, N.Y.; 1938—Roger Maris, N.Y.; 1939—Roger Maris, N.Y.; 1940—Nelson Fox, Chicago; 1941—Jackie Jensen, Boston; 1942—Mickey Mantle, N.Y.; 1943—Mickey Mantle, N.Y.; 1944—Yogi Berra, N.Y.; 1945—Yogi Berra, N.Y.; 1946—Al Rosen, Cleveland; 1947—Bobby Shantz, Phila.; 1948—Yogi Berra, N.Y.; 1949—Phil Rizzuto, N.Y.; 1950—Ted Williams, Boston; 1951—Lou Boudreau, Cleveland; 1952—Joe DiMaggio, N.Y.; 1953—Ted Williams, Boston; 1954—Hal Newhouse, Det.; 1955—Spud Chandler, N.Y.

both Dodgers, won both awards in the National League in 1956 and Koufax in 1963.

The 24-year-old right-hander also is the first AL pitcher to win the MVP award by a unanimous vote, the first AL pitcher to win it at all since Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz in 1952 and the first Tiger to receive the award since Hal Newhouse, also a pitcher, in 1944 and 1945.

1942—Joe Gordon, N.Y.; 1943—Joe DiMaggio, N.Y.; 1944—Hank Greenberg, Det.; 1945—Joe DiMaggio, N.Y.; 1946—Jimmy Foxx, Bos.; 1947—Charley Gehring, Det.; 1948—Lou Gehrig, N.Y.; 1949—Hank Greenberg, Det.; 1950—Mickey Cochrane, Det.; 1951—Jimmy Foxx, Phila.; 1952—Jimmy Foxx, Phila.; 1953—Jimmy Foxx, Phila.; 1954—Lefty Grove, Phila.

Voting

Denny McLain, Detroit, 280; Bill Freehan, Detroit, 161; Ken Harrelson, Boston, 103; Willie Horton, Detroit, 102; Dave McNally, Baltimore, 78; Louis Tiant, Cleveland, 78; Dick McAuliffe, Detroit, 71; Frank Howard, Washington, 63; Carl Yastrzemski, Boston, 50; Mel Stottlemyre, New York, 43; Bert Campaneris, Oakland, 39; Roy White, New York, 17; Jim Northrup, Detroit, 15; Luis Aparicio, Chicago, 13.

The only other AL pitchers ever to be named MVP were Spud Chandler of New York in 1943 and Lefty Grove of Philadelphia in 1931, the year the award was instituted. The Cy Young award was begun in 1956.

McLain, who also was named the Cy Young winner unanimously, was placed first on every ballot by the 20 members of the voting committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Bill Freehan, McLain's battery mate, was runner-up in the voting, the only other player who was named on all 20 ballots cast by two writers in each league city.

The catcher received 161 points to the winner's 280 and was followed by Ken Harrelson, Boston, 103; Willie Horton, Detroit, 102; and Dave McNally, Baltimore, and Luis Tiant, Cleveland 78 each.

McLain, son-in-law of the 1948 MVP, Lou Boudreau, was brilliant throughout the regular season. He won 31 games, lost only six, compiled a 1.96 earned run average, completed 28 of 41 starts and struck out 280 in 336 innings.

He faltered in the World Series, losing his first two starts before beating St. Louis in the sixth game. However, MVP voting was conducted before the Series.

The National League's MVP award will be announced next Wednesday.

You don't "notice" Gas Heat

(but the feeling is great)

Neither hot, nor cold. With gas heat you don't "notice" a thing — just feel your best.

Every year, Americans select gas heat for 9 out of 10 new homes. Gas stays ahead. New gas ideas are the reason.

Here are some of the ideas people select for the new homes they build. Consider these ideas for your present gas system.

Gentle air flow that keeps air in continuous but almost imperceptible motion. Continuous circulation for even temperature from head to toes. (Ask for Continuous Air Circulation.)

New indoor-outdoor thermostats anticipate rapid changes in outside temperature. Furnaces don't run to catch up, or overheat the house. Even heat 24 hours a day.

Automatic flame height controls that match your home's heat needs minute by minute. Exact temperatures at your command. (Ask for modulating burners.)

Protection against dry air is an add-on feature as well as gas summer cooling. Extra comfort year around. (Ask for the Great Gas Comfort Machine.)

Yes, new gas ideas do make a big difference. They will give your family a Great Day. Call your heating contractor or Gas Company.

LBJ Delayed Bomb Halt 24 Hours

WASHINGTON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government first agreed to participate in Paris peace talks, then withdrew its commitment but President Johnson went ahead with the bombing halt, anyway, informants here said Tuesday.

Johnson delayed his action at least 24 hours, according to U.S. authorities, in an effort to get President Nguyen Van Thieu to go through with the original agreement on the bombing halt and the expansion of the talks to include representatives of Saigon and the Viet Cong.

When this effort by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker failed, the bombing halt and the plans for the expanded talks were announced.

Sources close to the President said he felt it necessary to act rather than risk collapse of the entire new move toward peace. Thieu did not object to the bombing halt in itself, these informants say, but declared that his government should have assurance from North Vietnam that the National Liberation Front—the Viet Cong's political arm in South Vietnam—would not be brought into the Paris meeting with any claim that it was a separate delegation there to speak for South Vietnam.

This issue has been behind South Vietnam's decision not to attend the session in Paris scheduled for Wednesday—a decision in Saigon which led in turn to the postponement of Wednesday's meeting by the U.S. and North Vietnam.

Johnson knew when he made his announcement of the bombing halt last Thursday night that he faced a difficult and delicate problem with South Vietnam in moving the peace talks into a new phase. In this realization he did not say Saigon would participate in the scheduled Nov. 6 session in Paris, but said only that "representatives of the government of South Vietnam are free to participate."

U.S. officials at that time played down the whole issue which has now become paramount in the future development of the peace talks.

The formula which the U.S. espoused for organizing the new phase of the peace talks has come to be known here as the "your side—our side" solution. It provides that North Vietnam and the NLF would simply form one side in the peace talks and that the United States and South Vietnam would form the other.

U.S. officials argue that this avoids the whole question of recognition and status.

U.S. officials said Tuesday they still believe that the problems with South Vietnam can be resolved and that Thieu will eventually send a delegation to Paris.

HAZARD REMOVED

Buffalo Warehouse Fire Causes $500,000 Damage

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A warehouse fire spewing clouds of heavy black smoke across a portion of downtown Buffalo burned out of control for more than four hours Tuesday and caused damage estimated at $500,000.

The warehouse's 22 employees had left the building to cast their votes in the election less than one-half hour before the fire was discovered.

About 100 firemen and 30 pieces of equipment responded to four alarms called in quick succession after a fire department official spotted smoke while on a routine check of the neighborhood. Fifty large hoses were used.

Four firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

The three-story, brick warehouse, owned by Markel Electric Co., was filled with finished products, mainly electric heaters, waiting to be shipped to customers.

Fire Commissioner Robert B. Howard said the fire was traced to an elevator shaft housing on the building's roof.

Republicans Make Clean Sweep of District Offices

Frame Wins Reelection To Senate by 2-1 Margin

Voters from the State's 25th Senatorial District re-elected Republican Richard C. Frame by an almost two to one margin over Robert N. Kunselman, Tionesta, his Democratic opponent.

Sen. Frame ran strong throughout the district, with there being little doubt about the outcome of the race early after the polls closed.

Voters from Warren, Venango, Forest, Elk and McKean counties turned out under sunny skies Tuesday in record numbers to cast their ballots. Republicans in the district hold an almost two to one registration margin over the Democrats.

Sen. Frame did particularly well in Warren County where he tallied 9,400 votes to Kunselman's 5,485. The story was the same in McKean County, where the incumbent senator tallied 11,079 to the Democratic opponent's 4,492.

In Forest County, home territory of Kunselman, Frame defeated his rival 908 to 746, with 11 of 12 precincts having reported. In Elk County, which is traditionally Democratic, Frame still managed to be in the lead, 5,039 to 4,552 with 28 out of 35 precincts reporting. Early returns in Venango County also gave Frame a substantial lead, 3,218 to 1,670 votes or 27 of 76 districts reported.

Sen. Frame, contacted early this morning for his reaction to victory, said: "Continuing to serve Warren County in the Senate of Pennsylvania offers me some challenging opportunities."

"I look forward to the work ahead and the satisfaction that will come from fulfilling those opportunities in highways, education, conservation and all the other responsibilities of state government," he said.

Sen. Frame resides in Franklin and is 42 years of age. He attended Yale University and the University of Virginia Law School.

A member of the Senate for six years, he is a member of the State Planning Board, Advisory Council for Comprehensive Health Planning, and as chairman of the Senate State Government Committee.

Sen. Frame said the major priorities for the State Legislature in the next two years are: "Education, government re-organization, transportation and the means of financing these goals."

JOHNSON

Albert Johnson Wins 3rd Term as Congressman

Albert Johnson won handily Tuesday a third term in the U.S. House of Representatives from the 23rd Pennsylvania District. Unofficially, with most of the vote in, Johnson had a tally of 65,343 compared to 38,814 for Alan Cleeton, his Democratic opponent.

Johnson was the leading vote getter in Warren County where he received 9,535 votes. Cleeton received 5,330 in the county.

As the returns came in showing Johnson the winner he said "I am very grateful for the confidence that the people of Warren County have shown in me."

"It makes me more eager than ever to serve the people of the 23rd district well."

The returns from the other nine counties in the district—Centre (61 of 67 precincts reporting) Johnson, 13,701; Cleeton, 8,824. Elk (28 of 35 precincts) Johnson, 5,746; Cleeton, 3,906. Clinton (Johnson, 851; Cleeton, 894. Clearfield (102 of 109 precincts) Johnson, 14,570; Cleeton, 10,368. McKean (total) Johnson, 11,252; Cleeton, 5,115. Forest (11 of 12 precincts) Johnson, 1,106; Cleeton, 524. Potter (total) Johnson 4,106; Cleeton, 1,709. Cameron (nine of 11 precincts) Johnson, 1,112; Cleeton, 630. Venango (27 of 76 precincts) Johnson, 3,364; Cleeton, 1,514.

Rep. Johnson, who resides at 409 Franklin St., Smethport, attended the University of Pennsylvania and earned his L.L.B. Degree from John B. Stetson University, Deland, Fla.

Before being elected to Congress, Rep. Johnson served 17 years in the State Legislature, nine of which he was Republican floor leader. He served on numerous state boards and commissions. He is presently an assistant floor leader, handling the Consent Calendar and is regional whip. Now in his 5th year in Congress, Johnson serves on two committees. . . Banking and Currency and Post Office and Civil Service.

Other Democrats returned to Washington were Joseph P. Viorito of Erie, Fred B. Rooney of Bethlehem, and Daniel J. Flood, incumbent from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Early returns gave the Democrats an 8-4 edge in the tense battle for control of a delegation which could be called upon to help decide the presidential election in the event of an electoral college stalemate.

Republicans elected included Lawrence Coughlin, 39-year-old state Senator who took the 13th district seat vacated when incumbent Richard Schweiker bid for the U.S. Senate against Democrat Joseph Clark.

Other GOP winners were Edward Belster Jr., in the eighth district of Montgomery, Bucks and Lehigh Counties; Edwin

Demos Pick Up 5 House Seats, May Gain Control

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Democrats picked up five seats previously held by Republicans in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, while losing two to the GOP in Tuesday's general election.

The net gain of three seats, if upheld, would give the Democrats control of the House by a slim margin of 102-101.

However, with results of most of the 203 House races across the state still in doubt at a late hour, it could not be determined conclusively which party would win a majority for the 1969-70 session.

Democrats won three Republican-held seats in Philadelphia, one in Lancaster County and one in Lackawanna County. Republicans defeated Democratic incumbents in Philadelphia and York county.

The Republican Party, which currently holds 104 seats, sought to pick up more to insure a friendlier reception for Gov. Shafer's legislative program in the next two years.

Democrats were just as hopeful of wresting the House away from the GOP as a means of forcing the administration to accept some of their own proposals.

John S. Fine, a Republican who served as governor from 1951 to 1955, was the last state chief executive to have his party in control of both House and Senate throughout his four-year administration.

With major interest centered on the presidential race and statewide and congressional contests, tabulation of legislative returns was expected to take all night.

Neither party was able to claim victory in the House elections until it could be reasonably assured that it had won at least 102 seats.

Normally, in presidential years, control of the Pennsylvania House goes to the party whose presidential candidate carries the state. The one exception was in 1944.

Republicans won the House in 1952 and 1956 with the victories of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and in 1962 and 1966 when Gov. William W. Scranton and Shafer swept into office.

Demos Win All 5 Philly Congressional Seats

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Democrats won all five Philadelphia district congressional seats Tuesday in a close race for control of Pennsylvania's 27 seat delegation to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Incumbents Robert N. C. Nix, William A. Barrett, William Green, James A. Byrne and Joshua Ellberg maintained the stranglehold the Democrats have held on the Philadelphia districts since 1958.

They were reelected as Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey won a smashing victory in his party's Philadelphia stronghold.

Other Democrats returned to Washington were Joseph P. Viorito of Erie, Fred B. Rooney of Bethlehem, and Daniel J. Flood, incumbent from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Early returns gave the Democrats an 8-4 edge in the tense battle for control of a delegation which could be called upon to help decide the presidential election in the event of an electoral college stalemate.

Republicans elected included Lawrence Coughlin, 39-year-old state Senator who took the 13th district seat vacated when incumbent Richard Schweiker bid for the U.S. Senate against Democrat Joseph Clark.

Other GOP winners were Edward Belster Jr., in the eighth district of Montgomery, Bucks and Lehigh Counties; Edwin Eshelman in the 16th district of Lancaster, Lebanon and Dauphin counties; and Joseph M. McDade in the 10th district, comprising Pike, Wayne, Lackawanna, Wyoming, Susquehanna, Sullivan, Bradford and Tioga counties.

In the Philadelphia congressional balloting, Nix, 68, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, defeated Herbert R. McMaster in the second district. Barrett, who serves on the House Banking and Currency Committee, won over Leslie J. Carson, 32-year-old Republican and an assistant district attorney since 1966. The 30-year-old Green, who succeeded his late father in 1964 turned back Gregory J. Meade, 52, a motor freight terminal supervisor, while Ellberg won over the GOP's Al Kapitil.

On the Republican side, Coughlin defeated Dr. Robert Gates, 44-year-old Democrat; Belster won over Richard M. Heppburn; and Eshelman stood off the challenge of Robert M. Going, McDade, an incumbent from Scranton, Pa., defeated Democrat Robert J. Landy.

Flood won over Republican Stanley Bunn in the anthracite area of Carbon, Columbia and Luzerne counties, while Viorito defeated John V. Edwards in the voting from Crawford, Erie and Mercer counties.

The present lineup in the Pennsylvania congressional delegation is 13-13, with a vacancy created by the death last summer of Democrat Elmer J. Holland of Allegheny County.

The only question appeared to be whether the Republicans could widen their current 22-22 lead in the Senate, or whether the Democrats would whittle away from it by a seat or two.

With principal election interest centered on the presidential race and statewide and congressional contests, tabulation of legislative returns was expected to lag far behind.

Of the seats contested, 14 are now held by Republicans and 11 by Democrats with 13 GOP senators and nine Democratic members seeking re-election.

The incumbents were elected to unprecedented two-year terms in 1966 when under court-mandated reapportionment, all 50 Senate seats went on the ballot. Normally, state senators are elected to four-year terms with half the seats up every two years.

Democrats have not had an absolute majority in the Senate since the 1937-38 session, although in 1961-62 the split was even 25-25.

Members of the small Constitutional Party, which received official state recognition two years ago, opposed major party state senatorial candidates in 11 districts.

Sloan, Casey, Cercone Ride With Humphrey

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Tradition was riding with Democratic candidates for the state's two fiscal offices and Superior Court Tuesday night as all three rolled to victory.

By tradition, the fiscal offices and often the court posts go to candidates of the same party as the presidential victor in the state.

Following Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey's monum e n t a l Philadelphia victory, which carried him over the top in the Keystone state, Robert P. Casey, Mrs. Grace M. Sloan and William F. Cercone won over their Republican opponents.

With 6,786 of 9,492 precincts reporting, Casey rolled up 1,733, 973 votes to 1,328,369 for his Republican opponent, Warner M. Deputy in the auditor general race.

Also, with more than two-thirds of the vote counted, Mrs. Sloan, the current auditor general, led her GOP opponent for the state treasurer's job, Frank J. Pasquerilla, by a margin of 1,643,206 to 1,410,987.

In the Superior Court contest, Cercone piled up 1,637,830 votes to Republican John B. Hannum's 1,392,087 votes with 6,722 precincts reporting.

Deputy conceded about 12:30 Wednesday morning, saying: "I feel that I've lost and I want to compliment my opponent, who is a good friend of mine, on a nice, clean campaign."

He added: "Once again, we move with a loser (Nixon). When the head of a ticket loses, we lose."

Pasquerilla and Hannum could not be reached immediately for comment.

Carries Titusville

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Richard Nixon carried this city's seven precincts Tuesday but not as strongly as in 1960.

The vote, usually one of the first to be counted in Pennsylvania, was Nixon 1,457, Hubert Humphrey 1,020, George Wallace 63.

That was 57 per cent for Nixon. He got 63 per cent in 1960.

SOBER WINNER

'Bill' Allen Wins First Full Term in Assembly

Republican William W. (Bill) Allen was assured of his first full term as representative in the State's General Assembly from the 65th District when voters Tuesday gave him an overwhelming victory over his Democratic rival Robert L. Holmes.

Unofficial returns had Allen defeating his Democratic opponent in practically every precinct in the Assembly District's two county area—Warren and Forest.

Incomplete district-wide returns were: Allen, 10,169; Holmes, 6,127. Warren County gave Allen 9,064 votes while his opponent picked up 5,607. The results in Warren Borough told the story of how the election went in the remainder of the district. Voters gave Allen 3,041 votes and Holmes 1,889 tallies. In Forest County the unofficial results were: Allen, 1,105; Holmes 520 with 11 of 12 precincts having reported.

Allen was elected to the Assembly in the fall of 1967 to fill the unexpired term of the late William C. Fuelhart. In the spring of this year, Allen defeated fellow Republican Robert Kusse in a Primary Election.

Allen expressed his "gratitude" to the district voters for presenting him such a mandate.

"I intend to keep my campaign promises and bring the residents of these two northern tier counties closer to Harrisburg."

"It is a relief to have a full two-year term ahead of me after practically running for office since I've been in the Assembly," he said.

Allen said he'll now have more time to devote to his duties in Harrisburg. "After you've served your freshman year," he said, "you are in a better position to be considered for more responsible positions on the Assembly's various standing committees."

Allen, a resident of Tidioute, attended Dayton Vocational High School and took special courses at Penn State University. He is a licensed insurance agent-broker.

During his one year in the Assembly, Allen served on the following standing committees: Fish and Game, Public Utilities, Liquor Control, Veterans Affairs, and the Joint State Government Ambulance Task Force.

For two years he served as chairman of a statewide elections study committee of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners. He was chief clerk for the County Commissioners for 10 years; and for eight years as secretary-treasurer of North Western Association of County Commissioners.

South West, Eldred Are Anti-Machines

Three townships, Spring Creek, South West and Eldred, voted Tuesday on whether to change over from paper ballots to machines and only Spring Creek voted in favor of making the change. The vote there was 100 for and 59 against.

The vote in South West was 48 for and 79 against and in Eldred 43 for and 103 against. There now will be 18 precincts in the county using paper ballots.

Mead to Divide Forest Monies

The voters of Mead twp. decided Tuesday to change its distribution of funds received from sales of the Allegheny National Forest lands in the township.

Until yesterday the funds were distributed 75 per cent to public schools and 25 per cent for roads. Now the monies will be divided evenly between roads and schools.

The vote was 45 for and 17 against in the first district and 107 for and 40 against in the third district.

Dies of Injuries

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — Mary L. Stone, 59, of Carmichaels died Tuesday in Greene County Memorial Hospital of injuries suffered in a traffic accident Oct. 31.

Mrs. Stone was a passenger in her husband's car which went out of control and left Pennsylvania 21.

Times-Mirror and Observer Announces Staff Changes

The Times-Mirror and Observer Tuesday formally announced certain changes in the staff of its editorial and news department.

Noel Dodd, a former employee of the Warren Times-Mirror and the Jamestown Post Journal who joined the staff last May, has been elevated to the position of day editor. Mrs. Natalie Williams continues in the position of night editor and wire editor.

Mrs. Betty Rice, who has worked on the daytime city desk has been named society editor. She replaces Mrs. Marion Hontart who resigned from the position this past weekend.

The newspaper also announced that Robert Clever of Tionesta, will on November 18 join the county news staff.

Another recent change in the news department was the appointment of Denny Bonavita as sports editor. He took over this post from John Quinn who was engaged to fill the role on a temporary basis and has since been transferred to the city desk.

Bradford Retains Council-Manager Type Government

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP) — A referendum to retain the council-manager form of government in Bradford, the first Pennsylvania community to adopt such a plan, was approved 2,478-1,038 Tuesday.

If the referendum had been defeated, Bradford's city government would have reverted to a commission form of government.

SMILING LOSER

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Area Couple

MRS. BLAKESLEE

A double ring and candlelight ceremony at First Methodist Church of Youngsville recently, united in marriage Glenda Collette Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Lucas, 137 Bates st., Youngsville and Stanley Allen Blakeslee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blakeslee, RD 1, Tidoute.

The Rev. Lyston Knappenburger performed the nuptials before an altar decorated with pom poms and candle chandeliers. Miss Linda Hannold of Youngsville was organist.

The bride was escorted by her father and was attired in a floor length gown of bridal satin, fashioned with empire bodice, bateau neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Alencon lace appliques enhanced the bodice, encircled the sleeves and extended down the front of the sheath effect skirt which flowed into a full cathedral length train.

Her bouffant veil of French illusion was secured by a lace petal headpiece highlighted with seed pearls and crystal. She wore wrist length white gloves and carried a handkerchief belonging to Mrs. Bell Caldwell. The bridal bouquet was white pom poms.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Brenda Garis, Youngsville and sister of the bride and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Shirley Flasher, RD 1, Youngsville and Mrs. Wanda Arnold, Youngsville, another sister of the bride, wore identically styled floor length gowns of gold and emerald green organza with lace underlay empire bodice, full length puffed sleeves and "A" line skirt with back fullness. A matching crown with tiered fingertip veil completed their ensembles. All carried bouquets of yellow and bronze pom poms.

Douglas Dias of Erie, a cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man and ushers were Bruce Dias, Erie and Terry Lucas, RD 1, Pittsfield, the bride's brother.

The mother of the bride chose a green, double knit "A" line frock, gold hat and gloves with brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a dark green knit suit with a beige top and brown accessories. Both wore yellow pom pom corsages.

A reception followed immediately after the ceremony with the church basement trimmed with white satin streamers, white paper bells and plastic bells. The bride's bouquet and those of her attendants were placed on the bride's table.

Aides were Mrs. George Beamon, Miss Nancy Stock, Mrs. Alice Isackson, Mrs. Charles Smith Jr., Mrs. Charles Smith Sr., Miss Charlene Smith, Mrs. Francis Kane and Mrs. Daniel Suppa.

The bride's travel costume was a green plaid jumper with green matching sweater and gold accessories.

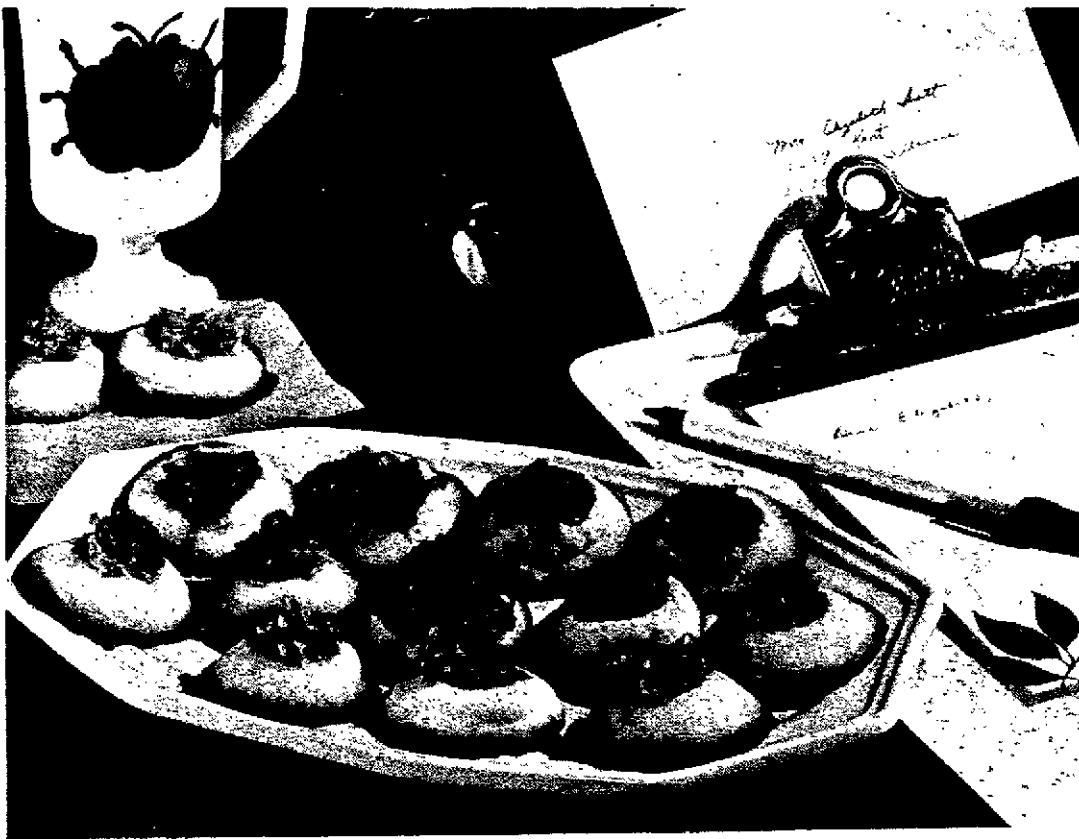

The couple resides at 123 Marsh ave., Youngsville.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Mrs. Walter Blakeslee and Mrs. Shirley Flasher. The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Corral Inn.

The new Mrs. Blakeslee is a 1967 graduate of Youngsville High School and 1968 graduate of Weaver Airline School in Kansas City, Mo. She is employed at Warren Electric Co. Op.

Mr. Blakeslee is a 1964 Youngsville High School graduate and served four years with the U. S. Navy. He is now employed with Corry-James-town Corp. in Corry.

Attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fitzgerald, Erie; Jack Klein, Christy Lehman, Rochester, N. Y.; Albert and Lorraine Hendricks, Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. George Richter, Cochranton. Others came from Warren, Clarendon, Irvine, Tidoute and Pittsfield.

HONEY HAYSTACKS

It's cookie time again... for youngsters back in school and for social organizations as well as for mothers who have a little time to relax in the early hours. Honey Haystacks are easy-to-make cookies that are real applause winners regardless of the audience.

New Recipe for the Lunch Box

It's cookie time again! That is, the youngsters are back in school, and Mom needs lots of new cookie recipes to keep their lunchbox full of nice surprises. The ladies' clubs and committees are back in the swing with meetings, meetings, meetings; and these call for new and tasty mid-afternoon snacks, too.

So, to add a rich, sweet taste to all the full Fall days, we recommend Honey Haystacks.

These are delicious buttery cookies crowned with a topping that combines coconut, honey and cinnamon. Easy to make, they're real applause winners. The youngsters will want to tote them to school at least once a week, and the ladies will find them a delight to nibble as they discuss Fall project plans.

The stay-up-late students in your house will rate them A-plus, also, if you serve a plate of the Honey Haystacks with a tumbler of cold milk or a pot of hot chocolate while they're hitting the books for a coming test. Honey is an instant energy-maker; so all honey-rich treats for the members of the school crowd are to be highly recommended.

Try baking a batch of the Honey

Haystacks soon, and see how popular they make you with the cookie-eaters in your house. Our bet is that you'll be baking them often. They're cookies that can go right to the head of the class!

HONEY HAYSTACKS
1 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg

BREAKFAST TIME

Maybe you turn the oven on to whip the early morning chill out of the air. Why not have an oven breakfast to serve both purposes?

Open cans of corned beef hash and pat into a casserole. Heat slightly in oven, then remove to make indentations with the back of a spoon. Break an egg into each hollow. Cover each egg with one tablespoon milk. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.), 15 to 20 minutes or until eggs are at the desired firmness. Serve at once.

Heat rolls or coffee cake in the oven while the eggs and hash bake. Then you need only prepare fruit or fruit juice and the breakfast beverage (coffee, tea, cocoa or pour milk) while the oven does the work.

1 egg yolk
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 can (3 1/2-ounces) flaked coconut
1/2 cup honey
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg and yolk. Stir in flour. Shape into balls, about one heaping teaspoon. Bake at 375 degrees for 5 minutes. Remove from oven and make a depression in each with a thimble or your thumb. Combine coconut, honey and cinnamon. Fill depression with coconut mixture. Return to oven and bake 3 to 5 minutes longer. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Sit-Down Dinner For Six Features Ham Loaf

Never think of leftover ham as leftover ham. Think ham loaf! And never hesitate to serve this homey dish to company under the misconception that dinner for company somehow has to wreck the week's food budget. Thank goodness, delicious food needn't be costly. Far better to use some imagination in menu planning and care in food preparation than to throw money around at the check-out counter!

Men -- bachelors in particular -- are touchingly grateful for home-style cooking with plenty of good, old-fashioned food on the table. So be kind to bachelors and invite at least one to share a sit-down dinner for six, with Ham Loaf and Fluffy Mustard Sauce as the featured attraction. The ingenious recipe uses bran flakes with sugarc-coated raisins instead of bread crumbs for a moist, flavorful ham loaf.

If you're a working girl, much of the preparation can be done ahead. Grind the ham the evening before, but do the actual mixing as soon as you get home. Then relax with your guests while your entree bakes. Fluffy Mustard Sauce, made with whipped topping mix, can also be made the night before.

Whipped sweet potatoes, which you've thoughtfully made and refrigerated in a casserole, bake with the ham loaf. Frozen green peas with sauteed mushrooms go well with this combination. Serve the salad as first course, California style, and make it grapefruit and orange segments on curly endive. End the meal with butterscotch pudding and whipped topping sprinkled with pecans. Both the fruit and the pudding can also be prepared ahead.

HAM LOAF
1 cup bran flakes with sugar-coated raisins
2/3 cup milk

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash of cayenne
4 cups (1 lb.) ground cooked ham
Fluffy Mustard Sauce (optional)

Combine cereal, milk, eggs, and seasonings; mix thoroughly. Add ham and stir until well blended. Pack ham mixture into an 8x4-inch or a 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour, or until browned. Invert onto warm serving platter. Garnish with pineapple slices and parsley, if desired. Slice and serve with Fluffy Mustard Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: For easier slicing, let loaf stand about 20 minutes before serving.

FLUFFY MUSTARD SAUCE
1 tablespoon sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon water
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 tablespoon horseradish
1/2 cup prepared whipping topping

Add sugar, salt, mustard, vinegar, and water to egg yolks; mix. Cook over hot (not boiling) water, stirring constantly until thickened--about 4 or 5 minutes. Stir in butter and horseradish. Remove from heat and cool thoroughly. Then fold in prepared whipping topping. Serve with ham loaf, baked ham, poached salmon, corned beef, or boiled beef. Makes about 1 cup.

TO STORE: Cover and place in refrigerator. Remove from refrigerator about 30 minutes before serving.

North's direct raise to two no trump does not get our vote of approval. Holding a five card major suit and a worthless doubleton, he should first explore the possibilities of playing the hand in a heart contract.

North is not in position to bid hearts directly himself, for a jump to three hearts would show 10 points, whereas a bid of two hearts would designate a hand containing less than eight points. The recommended procedure is for North to bid two clubs which in our current methods announces at least eight points and requests the opening bidder to show a four card major suit. The two club bid is, of course, artificial and has nothing to do with the club suit.

If South's rebid is two diamonds, this call is also artificial and denies a biddable major suit. North is now at liberty to bid two hearts himself and await partner's reaction. With the actual holding, South would have shown his heart holding and the major suit game would have been reached routinely. Declarer would have experienced no difficulty in taking 10 tricks.

Altho nine top tricks appear to be available in no trump, South found it necessary to engage in some fancy footwork to uncover a roadblock which loomed up momentarily in his long suit.

West opened the six of diamonds, the four was played from dummy and, when East put in the ten, he was permitted to take the trick. On the continuation, South was obliged to play the ace. Declarer cashed the queen of hearts and continued with a small heart to the king on which West showed out, discarding a club.

Declarer observed that, if he played North's ace of hearts next to drop East's jack, the following round of the suit would have to be taken in the closed hand, and there would be no way to ever reach the dummy again to cash the fifth heart.

He decided to enlist his opponent's assistance, to unravel the tangle. The jack of diamonds was led from dummy and South discarded the eight of hearts from his hand. West was able to cash out the defensive book in the diamond suit but, when declarer regained the lead, he was in position to overtake the nine of hearts with North's ace and run the rest of the suit.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Take a hint if it is a good one. Wise words come from thinking minds, so go in that direction to find them.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—You may feel "between the devil and the deep blue sea," as the old saying goes, but this only if NOT using all your faculties and know-how.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—A day that calls for serious thought (but not taking yourself too seriously). Living up to your high ideals and following wise procedures, you can put yourself in line for real gains.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Emotions could get out of hand unless you are determined to keep them under control. Lack of self-mastery could hinder your own ends. LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Regular and new tasks may both bring problems, but they can be straightened out with patience and sufficient care to avoid errors. Back intuition with more knowledge.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—It will be well to handle all matters discreetly now, slowing down where a tendency to hurry exists, and not provoking useless argument.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Don't let your zeal wither just because you may be faced with difficulties. Study problems carefully with your innate common sense and good judgment, and you should solve all.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Your personality, if at its highest level, could win many friends now.

Put forth your best efforts, support worthy causes, and insist upon integrity of method.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Get the other fellow's point of view BEFORE determining yours—to be better informed. Jupiter stimulates high-powered action.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Your aspects more favorable than those of the majority now but, by the same token, you will be bearing, mixing with, others who don't feel up to par. So stress calmness and mastery of self!

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—It will be important now to maintain balance and perk up your attitude and possibly your schedule. Keep alert to new trends, good advice.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Both executives and employees have numerous issues to work out now. Constructive measures can be further improved, and a serene manner of approach is urged.

YOU BORN TODAY are surely among the doers, not just the dreamers. But you have your moments for dreaming, too. However, the Scorpio nature must achieve, keep reaching out for new heights, so your dreams often materialize in unexpected action, and you can catch others off guard with bright ideas and unusual plans. Strengthen your good points, eliminate anything unworthy of your grand talents, and your route to success and real happiness will be paved smoothly. You can cooperate or go it alone, but the latter is not always wise. Birthdate of: John Philip Sousa, composer-bandmaster; Mike Nichols, stage and film director.

How to Keep Well

PORTER'S NECK

My curiosity about natives carrying heavy loads on the head finally has been satisfied. Some develop sore neck (porter's neck) from fractures, dislocations, herniated disks, and arthritis. In many instances, the bearer sustains muscle weakness with numbness or pain of the arms or legs; both also may be involved.

Yet these injuries are not common considering the millions of cumbersome bags carried annually. Dr. Laurence Levy, Rhodensian neurosurgeon, saw only 13 serious cases in 10 years. Two women and 11 men were injured while toting 200-pound sacks on the head for short distances (up to 30 yards).

How does the heavy load get on the head? Four men stand at the corners of the sack and the porter just in front of them. At a given signal, the bag is hoisted into the air as the porter quickly walks under it. The object is gently lowered on to the head and steadied with the hands until the porter arrives at his destination.

Injury may occur on loading, possibly because the sack was not centered. Or the neck is jolted when the porter slips and loses balance, or falls. If lucky, he may escape with nothing worse than a badly strained and painful neck. Those less fortunate sustain fractures, dislocations and spinal cord damage. Now and then the man trips, and the bag lands on top of him.

One man bet friends that he could easily carry two sacks in this fashion. As the second bag was placed on his head, he collapsed and died. In another fatality the victim was balancing a load of firewood on the head when he tripped and fell.

Porter's neck is similar to whiplash. The head is embedded in the sack which sags slightly on both sides. It cannot move independently of the parcel and if the body lists to one side, the head remains fixed for a moment, due to the inertia of the sack. Forced turning of the neck causes the injury. What a place for a conveyor belt or perhaps smaller bags!

TOMORROW: Mental Retardation.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

PNEUMONIA AND RF

O.D. writes: My 14-year-old son had pneumonia early this year. Then he developed rheumatic fever. Did the lung disease encourage it?

REPLY

Rheumatic fever (RF) usually occurs 14 to 21 days after a streptococcal infection. Unless the pneumonia developed within the period, it is not likely that the lung disorder was responsible for rheumatic fever.

SOLVING EASY GAGGING

T.S. writes: I am a gagger. Because of this the dentist can't take an X-ray or an impression of my teeth. Do you think a tranquilizer would help?

REPLY

Yes, but if this fails it may be necessary for the dentist to anesthetize the back of your throat before working on the teeth.

NORMAL BLOOD READINGS

Mr. O. writes: What does a blood count of 37 indicate?

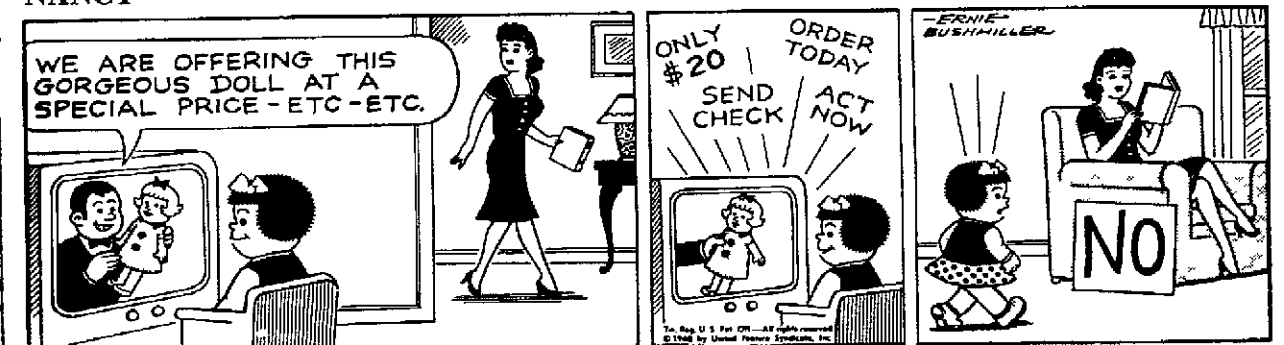

REPLY

The normal hematocrit reading (volume of red cells) is 40-54 per cent for males and 37-47 for females.

Ludlow Area News

By MRS. HILDUR WENSTRAN
Mrs. Doris Cartwright entertained her birthday club at her home Tuesday evening at a belated birthday celebration. All members were present; Mrs. Agnes Anderson, Mrs. Mollie Stamm, Mrs. Ann Genberg, Mrs. Mary Bires, Mrs. Dora Christenson, Mrs. Lottie Gorman, Mrs. Gladys Carlson and the hostess.
Mrs. Cartwright was presented a gift from those present. She served a most delicious lunch, games and visiting were enjoyed by all.
Mrs. Elsie Taylor, Miss Ruth Taylor and Russell Taylor, attended the funeral for Mrs. Anna Fitzgerald at Leeper, Pa., Saturday afternoon.
The Priscilla Circle of Moriah Church entertained at a luncheon Wednesday afternoon in honor of one of their members Miss Rose Nelson who recently celebrated her 80th birthday. Following a delicious meal, the regular Bible Study was led by Miss Tillie Olson.
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hanson of Warren, visited Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson Sunday. They had just returned from a two weeks vacation trip to visit their daughter (Brenda) Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spahn in Tampa, Florida.
Friends will be happy to hear that Mrs. Ben Peterson has now arrived home after spending about two years in hospitals. The last one was the C. Howard Marcy Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa.
Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnson returned home Wednesday after visiting at the home of their daughter (Joanna) Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mair and daughters in Berwyn, Pa.
Mrs. Axel K. Anderson visited her brother John Christenson in Jamestown, N.Y., last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. George Matis of Wetmore also visited friends there on Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richard of Jamestown, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson of Ludlow, left Friday for a two weeks vacation to Florida, they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spahn and other relatives in the Tampa area.
Mrs. Anna Bergquist and Miss Norma Bergquist, returned home last Sunday evening from a three weeks vacation in Boston and Dorchester, Mass., and in Fairport, N.Y., with Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Bergquist.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dickson of Massena, N.Y., have been recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Swanson.
Mr. Robert Flatt and Michael Bolton of Erie, were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Elsie Taylor, and Miss Ruth Taylor.
Mr. and Mrs. Swartzman of Erie, spent a few days of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson.
Mrs. Carl Gorman spent last week in Allegheny, N.Y., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Eckman and family. Sunday Mr. Gorman and Mrs. Doris Cartwright went there for a visit, bringing Mrs. Gorman home with them.
Funeral services for August Anderson 85, of Gibbs Hill, Ludlow, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Moriah Church with the Rev. Carl F. Eliason and Rev. Robert E. Olson officiating. Mr. Anderson was found dead at 11:30 Thursday October 31 at his home by friends. He was born in Sheffield November 11, 1882 and had lived in Ludlow since 1923, coming from Bismarck, N.D. He was a member of Moriah Church in Ludlow.
Pallbearers were his second cousins from Warren. Burial was in Gibbs Hill Cemetery. He was survived by several cousins and second cousins. Axel K. Anderson and Joe Mortenson have been admitted to the Kane Community Hospital and Miss Alma Nelson to the Warren General Hospital.
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Batton and family from Kenmore, N.Y., spent the weekend at the home of her mother Mrs. Alma Carlson.
Mr. Woodrow Peterson and son Craig Peterson of Cleveland, Ohio, spent the weekend at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ben Peterson.
Mrs. Freda Swanson returned home Saturday after she had been visiting for two weeks in Erie and Warren with relatives.
Mrs. Eva Jones has been visiting relatives in Redbank, N.J., for the past week.

"Blessed Are These" was the topic for Rev. Carl F. Eliason's sermon at the Sunday morning service. The church choir led by Mrs. Mabelle Nelson sang "In Heaven Above". Flowers in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Alfson were given by Mr. and Mrs. James Tolman. Also a basket from the August Anderson funeral by relatives.

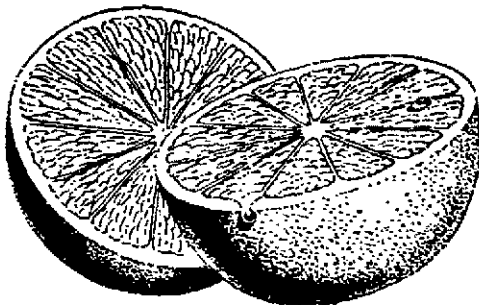

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gregg spent from Friday till Tuesday in Binghamton, N.Y., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Gregg where they celebrated the 9th birthday of their grandson Andy Lee.

Attend Principals Conference

Several members of Warren County School District attended the Pennsylvania Elementary Principals' Conference held Oct. 31 through Nov. 2 at Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

Those attending were Dr. J. Blair Logan, director, Elementary Education; Miss Dorothy Lincoln, Home Street School; Mrs. Helena Isaman, North Warren School; David Vennberg, Lander School; Ange Dimino, Jefferson Street School; Larry Mong, Market Street School and Gordon Sutton, Irvine School.

Those attending the conference had an opportunity to hear Jack Valenti, engaged in the Motion Picture Industry; Dr. Bruce Joyce, Columbia University; and Dr. Robert Jozwiak, assistant executive director, Department of Elementary School Principals National Education Association.

During the conference the county school district representatives had the opportunity to participate in simulated workshops designed to explore the role of the principal as an instructional leader, decision maker, and his relationship with members of the elementary school staff.

That's the number
we'd like you to remember the next time you buy a Pork Loin Rib Portion.

Why?

Because that's how many ribs you'll get if you buy a

"SUPER-RIGHT" Pork Loin Rib Portion at A&P.

When you pick up the package,
you can feel and count the rib bones with your fingers.

If you don't shop A&P, try counting the ribs.

If there aren't seven, you're missing select meat.

You're not getting the best value.

Because of fair practices like this,
because WE CARE...about you,
shouldn't A&P be your store?
